To----

Dean A. L. Stone, the Class of 1926 respectfully dedicates this volume of the history of Montana. Friend, counsellor, unselfish always in his devotion to Montana, he has set for us an example—a goal toward which all may aim, secure in the knowledge that they are striving for the best that may be obtained in life.

FOREWORD

In constructing this yearbook of the University of Montana, a conscientious effort has been made to present to you a chronological review of the college year of 1924-1925—its successes and its failures. We have tried to keep in mind the historical development of Montana and our university, contrasting in a degree, the past with the present.

This book, the earnest effort of a hard-working staff, has been compiled in the attempt to add another accurate volume to the ever-growing history of Montana.

PICTORIAL MONTANA

This series of scenes catches University buildings and grounds from points often viewed, from paths often trod. Its purpose is to reveal the school in its true perspective, showing the natural beauty and appeal of the institution. We sincerely hope that we have presented an accurate picture of the Montana campus as it is today — a picture which will live long after future growth blots out present scenes.

Yes, I have known
Green mountain meadows, and swamps where blackbirds call,
And pools where stones and water glisten
In the bright hot rays of noontime sun;
And I have travelled newer, longer trails,
Feeling the tug of packstraps on my back,
Hearing the soft slow tread of mountain men—
(My ancestors who knew the Oberland)
Re-echoed on Montana's scarce-known hills.
And I have camped at night by ice-walled lakes

I wonder why the pavements hurt my feet.

FACULTY

C. H. CLAPP

April 16, 1925.

Students of the State University of Montana:

A generation ago, President Craig gave us our motto, "The University, it must prosper." The University has prospered as is manifest by its increased financial support, physical plant, faculty, student body, and scholastic standing.

Because of this greater service which the University is rendering you, several of whom are sons and daughters of alumni, you have a greater obligation to meet. Meet it with a willingness, and a desire, to help Montana as a whole, thus adding to our motto, the further ideal and guiding principle, "The State, it must prosper."

Sincerely,

Charles H. Clapp

R. H. JESSE.

THE SUCCESS of a University life is measured by the extent to which we retain its influences for all time. The Sentinel, with its concrete record of much that is best and most important in the year, will aid in keeping these influences fresh. It is a great pleasure to be able to inscribe in this permanent memorial of college days and college friends my sincere good wishes for you all.

R. H. JESSE.

HARRIET RANKIN SEDMAN

THE PEOPLE of the State of Montana have given to you this University with all of its facilities for education. Your parents have made it possible for you to attend the University, often when it means self-denial. Are you putting forth every effort to get the most out of your university experience? Are you profiting by your opportunity? If you can honestly answer "Yes," you have justified the confidence placed in you.

HARRIET RANKIN SEDMAN.

Introducing —

PRESIDENT C. H. CLAPP. He has been with us for four years, and his untiring efforts are always for the University and for her students. Prexy is one of us, through and through—a sincere friend of each Montana student.

PROFESSOR FREDERICK C. SCHENCK, head of the department of foreign languages and vice-president of the University, is the only person still with us who was on the original faculty. Prof. Schenck returned in September after a year's sojourn in Europe, and he was heartily welcomed by the student body.

DR. MORRIS J. EMMON is as strongly attached to the hearts of the students as he is to the department of Biology and Zoology. He has been with the institution since its infancy, and he has been a loyal booster during his affiliation.

FRANCES COMBES, professor of English, has been a member of the University faculty since the early years of the institution. She is back, after a year's absence, at her old post.

The Dean of the School of Journalism, ARTHUR L. STONE, is an enthusiastic worker for our Alma Mater. During his ten years on the faculty, he has won the admiration of each Montana student. The memory of the Dean brings a thrill to the heart of each alum. Our dearest tradition, SOS, was originated by Dean Stone.

GARVIN D. SHALLENBERGER, professor of physics, is the man to whom we are indebted for our radio broadcasting station which was constructed this year. That will go to prove that he is interested in our University and her growth.

WILLIAM E. SCHREIBER, head of the department of Physical Education, is known to all the students as "Doc." This big man has a big heart, and he spends much of his time working for Montana.

RICHARD H. JESSE fills a two-fold role on the campus. He is Dean of Men and head of the Chemistry department. "Doc" has done much to raise the scholastic standing of the institution and is ever loyal to the school.

DEAN SHIRLEY J. COON, of the School of Business Administration, has a keen interest in students. He often listens to tales of woe, and is ever willing to help one in his difficulties.

THOMAS SPaulding, Dean of the School of Forestry, knows his work and he knows his students, is a prominent figure in campus life, and enjoys loyal cooperation of the students with whom he works.

CHARLES W. LEAPHART, Dean of the School of Law, has been with us since 1913, and his efforts in his work have reaped commendable results.

DeLoss SMITH, Dean of the School of Music, is popular among the students. With his genial smile and his democratic spirit he has become prominent in campus activities. He is always willing to back a good cause, and is always working for the interest of the institution. He is a peach of a scout on the Glee Club trips, according to the members of the club.

CHARLES MOLLETT, Dean of the School of Pharmacy, is known as a "good fellow" among his students. He gives them his subject in an interesting manner and they, in turn, give him the best they have.

PROFESSOR H. G. MERRIAM, chairman of the English department, has spent his energy in making his department one of the best in its specialty. He has been an enthusiastic worker for The Frontier, and his creative writing students have done commendable work. His sympathetic interest in his students has won for him admiration and cooperation.

HOWARD MILTON COLVIN is a professor of law, and he works diligently in that school. He is a true friend of Montana students and is interested in campus activities.

A. H. WEISBERG conducts the University orchestra, of which he may well be proud. He is also professor of violin, and is deeply interested in his work.

FREEMAN DAUGHTERS, professor of Education, is known throughout the state for his interest in his work, and he is very prominent in educational activities of the state. Dr. Daughters enjoys prominence on the campus and a strong following of students.

HELEN GLEASON is professor of home economics, and she is deeply interested in her work. The women who work with her praise her for genial interest and lasting faith in her students.

PROFESSOR J. E. KIRKWOOD is head of the department of Botany. "Doc" Kirkwood is a big man, and he presents his subject in an interesting manner. His students work and they work hard, but they get results for their steady labor.

N. J. LEXNES, professor of mathematics, is the author of many text books on mathematics. He is interested in his subject and puts it forth in an interesting manner.

J. EARLE MILLER, known to every Montana student as "Burly," is professor of history and political science. He is an enthusiastic booster for the University, and has a live interest in campus life. "Burly" has won his way into the hearts of the students by his cordial smile and his democratic "hello."

JESSE P. ROWE, professor of geology, is one of the early members of our faculty. He is an untiring worker for Montana University, and enjoys the support and cooperation of all the students. He is a prominent campus figure.

FRANKLIN O. SMITH, professor of psychology, is an enthusiastic worker on the campus. "Psyche" Smith, as he is known to the students, is deeply interested not only in his special work, but in the welfare of the institution.

MAJOR GEORGE L. SMITH conducts the military activities of the University. He is a strict disciplinarian, and he gets the best from his rookies. Major Smith can well be proud of the R. O. T. C. he has helped establish on the campus.

JOSEPH H. UNDERWOOD is professor of economics and has been affiliated with the University for several years. "Doc" Underwood has a keen interest in the institution, in her activities and her students.

ERNST A. ATKINSON is leader of our Grizzly band, and his efforts have brought forth remarkable results. Montana is truly proud of her band. Prof. Atkinson is assistant professor of psychology, and is a prominent and popular figure on the campus.

OFFICERS OF THE SENIOR CLASS

WILLIAM GARDNER	President
MARGARET HARRIS	Vice President
ELLEN GUYER	Secretary
ARTHUR BLAIR	Treasurer
MARIAN FITZPATRICK	Delegate to Central Board

The class of 1925, since its beginning four years ago, has been prominent in school activities and in the promotion of school spirit. Its members have held important offices in the student and campus organizations, and their athletic strength has contributed much to the Montana teams.

While freshmen, the class was led by Tom Mathews as president; Eloise Baird, vice-president; Marian Fitzpatrick, secretary; Clyde Estey, treasurer; and Gene Murphy, class representative to Central Board.

Howard Doggett was elected president of the class as sophomores; Marian Fitzpatrick, vice-president; Ruth Bryson, secretary; George Oechsli, treasurer; and Ted Jakways, Central Board delegate.

Fred Martin was elected president of the class in 1923; Eloise Baird, vice president; Lurena Black, secretary; Charles Conley, treasurer; and Catheryn McRae, class representative.

MARVIN PORTER	Delegate to Central Board

The career of the junior class has been marked by consistent participation in school activities and in all fields of college athletics. Especially has this been true in baseball, where six juniors played on last year's team. This spring the class of '26 won second place in the inter-class track meet. It also won the tug-of-war both as frosh and sophs, being the first freshman class to win the contest in a number of years.

As freshmen, the class elected Edwin Buck president; Gertrude McCarthy, vice-president; Marjorie MacRae, secretary and treasurer; and Marvin Porter, representative to Central Board. The second year, Edwin Buck was again elected president, with Elizabeth Kilroy vice-president; Marcia Patterson, secretary; Sammie Graham, treasurer; and Marvin Porter, representative to Central Board.

"Tammans," honorary organization for sophomore women, had its inception into campus life last year, due to the enthusiastic cooperation of 18 women of the present junior class, who are charter members.

The outstanding social event of the year was the Junior Prom held in the gymnasium, May 23, in honor of the graduating class.

Class of 1927

OFFICERS OF THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

JACK DUMINY	President
ANN STEPHENSON	Vice-President
MARY SCIENCE	Secretary
EDITH SMITH	Treasurer
ROBERT WARREN	Delegate to Central Board

When the class of '27 entered the institution last year, it had rich possibilities and the campus gossiped about all that the frosh would bring to their institution. In two years the sophomores have made more than an excellent beginning.

Hazing encouraged the first real fight the class witnessed, and it was then that the campus first realized that the class of '27 had fight. Many of the sophomores were decorated with traditional hair-cuts which were meant for the frosh. The class contests, tub rushes, relays to the M, and the like, showed the characteristic fight of the class when it emerged victorious over the class of '26.

The class of '27 during its first year in the institution made a record in its primary purpose—it stood first in scholarship. Is not that a victory of which the class may always be proud?

The athletic record is another of which the class may boast. The frosh football team of last year won the Northwest championship. The basketball team gave the Varsity some worth while practices—any man on the Varsity will vouch for that. The interclass track meet was the final victory for the class last year, when they went off the field with first honors.

When the class passed into the elevated rank of sophomores, the campus was curiously watching its progress. Would the high standards continue to live? The class itself was determined that they should, and they have.

Count the sophomores on the honor list. They have upheld their scholastic standing. They have come back with victories in the freshman-sophomore contests that, according to traditions, rightfully belong to the sophomores. Then, too, count the sophomores on the Varsity football, basketball, track and baseball teams.

Two years well spent! Records have been established and standards have been set. And the class of '27 is determined to uphold that for which they stand in their future years in the University.

Class of 1928

OFFICERS OF THE FRESHMAN CLASS

KENNETH NILES	President
EVERETT COLLINS	Vice-President
ELIZABETH VEAULT	Secretary
CLARENCE MACLENNON	Treasurer
HORATIO KILROY	Ex-Officio Parent Representative

The class of 1928, a representative group of 431 high school graduates, has already proven its worth on this campus.

The achievements of this class have been many and varied. The freshman relay team defeated the sophomores in the race to the "M", which had previously been treated to a fresh coat of paint by the frosh; the honor roll each quarter has contained its share from the class of '28; 12 men participated in the Glee Club tour; about 40 have had parts in the plays produced by the Montana Masquers and the class in Dramatic Presentation; one made the Varsity debate team; 16 won numerals in football, and eight were awarded letters in basketball.

The freshman football team, although not victorious in either of the games played, gave evidence of good Varsity material in years to come, from the men who won numerals. These men were: Captain Kain, Brittenham, Meagher, Houston, Staat, Hodges, Vierhus, Callison, Bessie, Shultz, Rouglier, Colby, Streit, Mains.

The frosh were more fortunate with their basketball season, having won every one of the six games played. Of the 40 or 50 men out for the squad at the beginning of the year, the number was cut to a working organization of 17. The eight men making letters in this field were: Kain, Brittenham, Kilroy, Miller, Smith, Rottler, Hodges, and Graham.

Many freshmen were out for baseball, track, and spring football, two-thirds of the football squad being composed of frosh.

Among the social activities of the year is listed the annual frosh dance, given in compliment to the sophomores.

UNIVERSITY HALL

TRADITIONS

The Sentinel

Traditions

PAINTING THE "M".

Another tradition for the freshmen is that of keeping the huge stone "M" on Mount Sentinel white and shining during the year. Twice a year the members of the freshman class climb the hill and give the emblem a fresh coat of white paint. This custom is carried out before the first home football game of the fall quarter, and again before the Interscholastic track meet in the spring. The time and often the water must be carried from the foot of the mountain to coat the letter, which measures 100 feet long and 60 feet wide. When the men return from their afternoon's work, lunch is served them by the women members of their class.

HOMECOMING.

The biennial get-together of the alumni and former students of the University of Montana is celebrated by Homecoming Week, held sometime in November in conjunction with the most important home football game of the season. The celebration starts with Singing on the Steps the evening previous to the game. A big snake dance through the town follows, terminating in a pep rally and bonfire. The remainder of the program consists of social gatherings given by different campus organizations. The final event of the week is a dance given in the gymnasium in honor of the visitors.

Varsity Day.

Varsity Day, the tradition which replaced Sneak Day two years ago, is an occasion on which all students partake of a common enjoyment. Each year a manager is appointed, who prepares a program of entertainment, including class fights, a farce football game, and an all-university mixer, together with a program of speeches by faculty members and prominent business men of Missoula. The "M" Club has charge of the tradition and its observance.

SINGING ON THE STEPS.

No tradition expresses the true Montana spirit so thoroughly or provokes in each student a deeper realization of what Montana means to him than does Singing on the Steps. Even now, when more than 1200 students meet on this occasion, the gathering is still marked with that same communal spirit that characterized the first such group a few years ago. At 8, O. S. students gather promptly at 7:30 to hear brief talks by prominent faculty members or students, and unite their voices in Montana songs and yells. As the clock in Main Hall tower strikes eight, every head is bowed in silence until the completion of the last stroke, when the students join in singing "Old College Chums" and quietly disperse.

The Sentinel

RINGING THE BELL.

The most sacred duty of the bell in Main Hall tower is to broadcast the tidings of a Montana victory. There is no messenger so swift, no news service so thorough. Tradition dictates that the freshmen ring it whenever the Montana Grizzlies are victorious at home or on foreign fields. The freshmen have always arisen to the occasion with the greatest enthusiasm, but the bell eagerly awaits the coming of new classes, the heralding of new victories.

ABER DAY.

One of the finest traditions at Montana is the day set aside in memory of Professor William Aber, better known as "Daddy" Aber, who devoted his time and service, and took a personal interest in keeping the campus clean and beautiful. Every spring, as soon as the campus is in condition, a day is set aside for the purpose of cleaning up the university grounds. At this time, the entire student body and faculty work together for a common cause. Everyone does his share, whether he plays in the Grizzly band, prepares food, or rakes the oval. High Court in the afternoon, and an all university mixer in the evening form a fitting conclusion to a day of work.

TUG O' WAR.

The Tug o' War may not have always been on the square; but this year it was, and in accordance with tradition, the sophomores were victorious. As a result of the contest, the frosh had to wear their green caps the remainder of the spring quarter.

Each year, during Interscholastic Week, this tradition is observed when picked teams from the two lower classes oppose each other across Van Buren slough. This year's contest lasted exactly three and one-half minutes.

MAY FETE.

One of the most beautiful traditions at Montana is the May Fete, which is presented by the women of the University the latter part of

The Sentinel

May. The manuscript is selected from a group written in competition and submitted to AWS by students of the University.

, which was produced this year, was written by Agnes Getty, and directed by Dora Hauck. Marian Fitzpatrick was chosen Queen of the May this year.

CHARTER DAY.

Charter Day, the birthday of the University, is celebrated on February 17. On that day in 1898 the University of Montana began its career in the old Willard school building. This year Charter Day was celebrated by inspections, meetings, and receptions.

Several hundred guests were entertained and shown through the twenty buildings that now make up the University. Classes were dismissed during the afternoon, that the visitors might make an unrestricted inspection of the campus. Members of the ROTC acted as guides.

A. S. U. M. President's Message

George Boldt

The year just closing has been one filled with epochal progress in many fields of student activity. Whether or not the ASUM administration has kept abreast of its time is for the student and alumni bodies to determine. It has been a pleasure to serve, and it is our hope that our successors will find in the student body the same fine spirit of loyal cooperation that we have enjoyed. "Let these depart that others may come."

GEORGE BOLDT.

Here's to "Chuck"

To Yell King "Chuck" Keim goes a great deal of credit. He carried his office well on cold, November days, when the spectators were too cold to take a live interest in the game. "Chuck's" enthusiasm and spirit went out to the cold, muddy men who were trying to gain for Montana another victory. When the red-uniformed men were almost ready to drop from exhaustion, "Chuck's" voice, leading hundreds of other voices, filled the gymnasium and gave to those men the encouragement to go on.

"Chuck" withdrew at the end of the winter quarter, and Jack Norvell was appointed to fill the position for the remainder of the year.

The Central Board

The Executive and Legislative Council of the Student Body

The Central Board of the Associated Students of the University of Montana is composed of the four ASUM officers, president, vice-president, secretary, and business manager, who are George Boldt, Ruth Bryson, Winifred Wilson, and Einar Strommes, respectively; Kaimin editor, Vivian Corby, and Yell King Jack Norvell. Each of the four classes has a representative on the board. Marian Fitzpatrick, seniors; Marvin Porter, juniors; Robert Warden, sophomores; and Horatio Kilroy, freshmen. Two faculty members, Dr. M. J. Elrod and Professor J. E. Miller, serve on the board in the same capacity from year to year.

The board, which meets regularly every Tuesday throughout the entire school year, controls the expenditure of all student funds and manages all activities which are under the direction of the ASUM.

Associated Women Students

OFFICERS

DOUG KENNEDY	President
DOUG BOWSE	Vice-President
HELEN ROTHWELL	Treasurer
VALENTINE ROBINSON	Secretary

The Associated Women Students, composed of all women in the University, is a self-governing organization. Its purpose is to promote the general welfare of women students and to maintain a spirit of cooperation and unity. The organization, in cooperation with the Dean of Women, makes and enforces rules which govern women students.

The governing board, composed of a representative from each sorority, one from each women's dormitory, the officers of AWS, the manager of women's athletics, and the chairman of the Big Sister movement, meets each week and attends to the business of the organization.

Social activities of women sponsored by AWS are the Co-ed Prom, a get-acquainted party for women only held soon after school begins in the fall; the Co-ed Formal, an annual dance at which the women of the University are hostesses to the men, and a yearly spring picnic for the women of the institution.

A loan fund which benefits upperclass women who are unable to continue school on their own resources is maintained by AWS. The maximum loan is $100, and the amount is payable one year after leaving school.

Our New Athletic Field

When the University opens its doors next fall, a new $20,000 athletic field will greet you. The field will include a standard quarter mile track, a football field to be dedicated to the memory of Paul Dornblaser, a grandstand with a seating capacity of 8,000, tennis courts, handball courts, and probably a new baseball diamond and women's athletic field.

New features will be added to the field year by year by the Alumni Challenge Field Corporation until eventually Montana will have a $10,000 stadium.

Plans calling for the construction of a new athletic field at Montana from funds raised by the Greater University bond issue were first conceived in 1919. A court decision presented the use of the funds. Alumni of the University, however, made tentative plans for financing the construction of a field at a meeting held during Homecoming in 1922. As a result of this meeting the Alumni Field Corporation was formed by the Alumni Association to carry the plans. George R. Shepard was elected president; King Garlington, treasurer, and J. B. Spear, secretary. The sum of $40,000 was made the goal of the corporation.

Because of the business depression that followed, the plan was abandoned until this year. Twenty thousand dollars has been pledged for immediate use in the construction of the new field through the issuance of certificates of indebtedness. Interest on the bonds has been guaranteed by Central Board, Athletic Board, and the Inter-scholastic Committee.

The alumni have shown a great deal of interest and enthusiasm in the new project. At a recent meeting of the class of 1925, $1,859 was subscribed toward the field.

Never before have the alumni had such an opportunity to make the old slogan of President Craig effective—“The University: It Must Prosper.” The new field will be an incentive and inspiration to the students and those interested in athletics, and also an appropriate memorial to Paul Donblaser and other alumni. Larger benefits for objects of greater importance, compared with which the athletic field will be insignificant, may reasonably be expected to follow.

The Montana Kaimin

The Montana Kaimin, official student publication of the University, has come, during the past year, to mean more to the campus and to the country at large, than it has at any time in the past.

Under Richard Crandell, editor during the fall and winter quarters, the publication added another column to its size and developed amazingly both in quality and amount of news presented. The paper was always bright, and the news was always presented fairly and without regard for factions.

Associated with Crandell in his work were: Vivian Corbly, Charles Guthrie, Louis Stevens, Doris Kennedy, and Myrtle Shaw, news editors; Jesse Lewellen, sports editor; Winnifred Wilson, exchange editor, and Harold Seipp, columnist. The business staff was composed of Harold Hepler, business manager; Jack Coulter, assistant business manager, and Ed Hellman, circulation manager.

Crandell graduated at the end of the winter quarter, and Vivian Corbly was elected editor for the remainder of the year. Under Corbly, who carried out the policies laid down by Crandell at the beginning of the year, Fred Martin, Myrtle Shaw, Woodard Dutton, and Jesse Lewellen were news editors; Wilfred Feldhaber was sports editor, and Charles Guthrie acted as columnist. Winnifred Wilson remained on the staff as exchange editor, and the business staff was unchanged.

The Kaimin exchanges with practically every college publication in the northwest, and is known throughout the country. At an exhibit of representative collegiate publications, under the auspices of

The Sentinel

"The Heights," student publication of Boston University, the Kaimin was mentioned as ranking favorably.

"Putting out the sheet" is a difficult piece of work, and too much credit cannot be given those who remained at the "Shack" long after the rest of the town was asleep, in order that the news of the campus might be presented to the students next day. Just as the Kaimin is the medium of expression for the journalistic talent of the University, the Frontier is the organ for the expression of literary talent. It is published three times during the college year and contains short stories, poems and sketches written by members of the student body.

The class in creative writing, under the guidance of Professor Merriam, acts as a board of editors for the publication, passing upon manuscripts selected by members of the English department, and those offered by independent contributors. A high standard of literary excellence has been set and rigidly adhered to, making the Frontier one of the best collegiate literary publications in the country.

The November issue for the year 1924-1925 was a "Paul Bunyan" issue, featuring stories of that legendary person. The March issue was the fifth anniversary number, containing contributions from founders and illustrated with linocut cuts by Mrs. Belle Bateman, Dorothy Taylor, and Evan Reynolds. The Spring issue, containing a wide variety of material, was distributed the first day of the Interscholastic meet.

Minuet in G

Exquisite song of the little grey daves,
And of the night time—
Poignantly side by side
In a faded, faded tapestry. . . .

Exquisite sedness of men who walk,
When somewhere—
The swing of an endless dance. . . .
Gracefulness that, somehow, never comes,
Only as a shadow thru the singing summer-air,
But oh, the long, long hope!

Today

What did we talk about today?
Oh little things—little things—
The thin smiles that come to men
And why a child sings.

And what all did we do today?
Oh little things—little things—
Walked easily, arms brushing,
Watched a bird's wings.

And know? What did we know today?
A little thing—a simple thing—
Because of winter's long sitting by
The roadside. . . . we have spring.

Five years I watched that slope
Through blizzard, rain and drought;
And sometimes I did hope
To look beyond it—south,
Until the linemen came
And dug three holes out there:

It used to be so bare!"
They planted cross-barred poles,
Which have become, for me,
That ease for weary souls—

A year-book represents the work of many people. It means long hours of planning, of writing, and of verifying. To all the people connected with the compilation of a chapter of the history of Montana, this 1925 Sentinel has meant hard work, with no reward, nor glory; it has meant long hours spent in the office, while the rest of the campus was sleeping.

Not all of these workers are mentioned in the mast-head. Many of them have worked without the expectation of even the hollow glory of a "by line." They have worked for the sheer love of work; they have been actuated by the spirit of Service. However incomplete this brief chapter of Montana's forward moving history may be, it is certain that it would have been immeasurably inferior, without the assistance of these people.

The Sentinel

Bruce Crippen, as assistant to Evan Reynolds, has done invaluable work in planning and executing the drawings used in this book; Burr Smith spent days of his Christmas vacation interviewing advertisers and selling space; Furness Van Iderstine has always been ready and willing to collect pictures for the book; Jack Norvell has worked faithfully in collecting and writing data on various organizations, and the entire class in Advanced Reporting and Editing has done yeoman service in compiling information and writing the histories of classes and honorary organizations.

DEPARTMENT HEADS ON THE SENTINEL.

Louis Stevens is a junior in the School of Journalism, a member of Sigma Delta Chi, and has been actively connected with university publications since his arrival on the campus. He was a member of Intercollegiate Knights during his freshman and sophomore years.

Winifred Wilson, also a junior in the School of Journalism, is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, and has served as a member of the Kaimin staff for two years. She has acted as Athletic Board secretary and as secretary to ASUM during the past year.

Ed Heilman, a journalism major, and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, has taken an active part in dramatics since coming to the University and has served as circulation manager of the Kaimin during the past year.

Evan Reynolds is a junior in the Art Department. He is a member of Delta Phi Delta, and has acted as student-assistant in his major department. His paintings of western characters and his water-color sketches of Montana athletes have gained him prominence during the past year.

Herman Stark, a junior in the School of Journalism, has been a member of the Montana track squad for the past two years, and has taken a prominent part in University music, serving as a member of the Glee club and Varsity quartet. He was a member of Bear Paw during his sophomore year.

Robert Warden is a sophomore in the School of Business Administration. He is a member of Bear Paw, and has served as assistant track manager during the past year.

Annabelle Desmond, a sophomore in journalism, is a member of Tanans, and has been prominent in that organization during the year just past. She has acted as proctor at North Hall this year, and in her freshman year edited the fresh edition of the Kaimin.

Herbert Dunn, business manager of the Sentinel, is a junior in the School of Business Administration. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Psi, and has been a member of the Grizzly band for the past three years.

The Bear Paws, local sophomore honorary organization, was founded November 5, 1920. The purpose of this group is to meet all trains bringing visiting teams to Montana, to entertain these teams and see to their wants during their stay on the campus. Their motto is "University, first, last, and always." The Bear Paws' official duty is to act in the capacity of policemen at all athletic contests. They are the guardians of our traditions.

Twenty men are selected from the sophomore class each fall, and are tapped Bear Paw at the first S. O. S. These twenty men are picked because of their outstanding ability as leaders and their loyalty to the University.

A. E. ATKINSON,

Director

During the past year the band has made many public appearances for concerts, and has taken part in most of the University affairs. It has gained national recognition both as a college band and as an ROTC band. This recognition is due in a great degree to the efforts of A. E. Atkinson of the psychology department, who is the band leader. He has received earnest cooperation from every member of the organization.

Following is the personnel of the band:

Conductors: T. Walker, R. Adams, A. Christensen, M. Marx, W. Standacher, P. Ray, P. Crabb, H. Dunn, G. Connolly.

Chorists: R. Hartzell, L. Thomas, C. Lawson, E. Brittel, H. Davis, W. Lewis, H. Clark.

Percussion: C. Cook, A. Wedum, W. Dunn, C. McFarland.

Alto: J. Janssi, A. Stepanoff, A. Rosenthal, L. Parsons, R. Taylor.

Baritone: T. Lowary, J. Garmann, K. Laskin.

Trombones: H. Rixley, G. Berry, H. Scully, E. Riefflin, D. Baldwin, A. De Perri.

Saxophones: L. Nichols, G. Rorchers, H. Gillespie, E. Graybeal, R. Kemps, D. McLaughlin, C. McLennan, K. Niles, J. Wheatly.

Basics: P. Judge, K. Saunders, C. Wilson, D. Lund, R. Mather.

Drums: A. Gillette, J. Rivenes, S. McCarthy, O. Maho, A. Bartoll, J. Ward.

Glee Club

The University Glee Club this year completed its ninth annual tour of the state with success that shed glory on Montana and on Dean DeLoss Smith, director. The previous reputation of the club paved the way for good houses and a welcome at every appearance.

As has been its wont in past seasons the Varsity quartette, composed of Herman Stark, first tenor; Chester Watson, second tenor; Martin Huddloff, baritone; Harold Craven, bass, took for itself first honors among the individual units of the club. Their songs, "Sugar" and "How Come," never failed to provoke laughter from their audiences and to answer the demand they were forced to build up a repertoire of fifteen songs.

Dean DeLoss Smith, director of the club, known to every music lover of the state as a director and soloist of the higher order, augmented his extensive repertoire of last season with the addition of new solos, "Lorraine, Lorraine, Lorraine," by Sprose; "I Dunno," by Wells; "The Maddog," by Russell, and "The Captain of The Marguerite." The last number always drew round after round of applause.

To concert-goers of the state, Miss Bernice Berry is known and loved for her splendid work as accompanist and piano soloist with the club the past few seasons. Her brilliant interpretations of MacDowell's "March Wind" and "Bluettes" were the subjects of much favorable comment from critics wherever she appeared.

The African harpists, Clark MacLennan and Oliver Malm, drew numerous encores and were the spice of the second act of the Glee club performance. In addition, they were parts of the club orchestra.

The Sentinel

otherwise known as the "Grizzly Symphonizers" composed of Malm and MacLennan, together with Maurice Driscoll, Herbert Onstedt, Earl Clark, and Marvin Porter.

The state tour included Deer Lodge, Anaconda, Big Timber, Columbus, Billings, Red Lodge, Laurel, Livingston, Butte, Helena, Whitefish, Columbia Falls, Kalispell, Polson and St. Ignatius. The club returned to Missoula on February 14 and gave its Missoula program, February 21.

Women's Glee Club

The Women's Glee Club has undertaken a different role in their activity on the campus this year. Instead of giving a program sometime during the winter quarter as has been the custom in the past, they have given a series of programs over the radio, KUOM.

The early beginnings of the Women's Glee Club date back to 1914 when Professor Fischer of the School of Music started the first club, composed of 13 voices. From 1915 to 1920 Dean DeLoss Smith had charge of the club and it was during this time that the Women's Glee Club became best known, for it's operetta and classic music. In 1922 the Glee Club became a credit department of the University.

The Glee Club is a selective organization of University women directed by Dean DeLoss Smith, professor of music, and Mrs. Smith, accompanist. The club has 24 members and has been a growing organization since its beginning.

The present members of the club are: Camilla K. Arndt, Arline Burdick, Dorothy Dall, Edith Dawes, Frances Dunn, Vita Henry, Edna Eugenia Gerecy, Myrtle Hollingsworth, Mary Kistle, Marguerite MacFadden, Imogene Newton, Anna Pederson, Dorothy Reeves, Helen Reeves, Elizabeth Shammuel, Eloise Walker, Greta C. Shriver, Gertrude Stevens, Genevieve Murray, and Ruby Jacobson.

Radiocasting Station KUOM

Station KUOM, located in Simpkins hall, was built by students of the University under the supervision of Professor H. G. Shallenberger, head of the Physics department.

The station carries on a twofold work: that of broadcasting, to radio fans of this and other states, news and productions of the University and its students, and secondly of providing a means for teaching radio communication through actual contact with a transmitting and receiving station.

KUOM, with a power plant of 250 watts and a wave-length of 244 meters, has been received as far north as Alaska and as far south as North Carolina. The stations programs are always interesting as some of the best musical organizations and speakers of the state are in close proximity to the station and their services are heartily donated for the pleasure of their "friends of the air."

The cost of the station and its equipment is approximately $1800. It is complete in every detail, having an adequate broadcasting studio, receiving room, and operating station.

News of the weather, stock market reports, campus news, singers, speakers, campus organizations, orchestras, bands—all have their turn at sending their talent on the air, to the pleasure of those who are listening in and as a forceful agency for advertising the University of Montana.

Debate

Debating, as an activity upon the campus of the University of Montana, awoke to new life and greater possibilities during 1925. The field expanded to include freshmen debating, and debating for women. Through the efforts of Professor L. R. Norvelle, debating was placed on a general educational basis, and twice as many debaters as ever before were trained for the squad. The debates were followed by open forums, giving the audiences active participation in the discussions and audience decisions were rendered in the majority of the contests.

Not only was the field of debate enlarged, but the territory represented included a team from Oxford University, England. The Oxford team, composed of Malcolm MacDonald, J. D. Woodruff, and M. C. Hollis, using the English debate system, discussed the question, Resolved: That the referendum is a necessary part of representative government. Grover Johnson, Elmer Strommes, and George Boldt represented the University of Montana.

The Sentinel

The question considered by the other teams of the debate squad was, Resolved: That Congress should be empowered to over-ride, by a two-thirds vote, decisions of the Supreme Court which declare Congressional action unconstitutional. In the Annual Triangular Debates, Helen MacGregor and Charles Conley debated against Idaho at Missoula on the affirmative side of the question, while Carl MacFarlane and Archie Blair upheld the negative at Utah.

Louis Aronowsky and Herbert Hoagland debated the team from the State Agricultural College at Missoula, Hamilton, Whitehall, Great Falls, Roundup, Columbus, Billings, Big Timber, and Livingston.

The women's teams debated against the women's teams of Inter-mountain Union College of Helena. Helen Rothwell and Helen MacGregor debated affirmatively at Missoula, while Louise Joughin and Genevieve Murray debated the negative side of the question at Helena.

The freshman team, composed of Edwin Booth, Vic Warnock, and Sidney McCarthy debated the freshman team at Bozeman.

The debate season closed with the Montana Kansas Aggie debate, wherein the two schools exchanged briefs and speakers: Charles Conley, Montana; Arthur Achey, Montana, and Robert Hedberg, Kansas, debated the affirmative, and Carl MacFarlane, Montana; Genevieve Murray, Montana, and Cecil Wall, Kansas, upheld the negative. The audience gave a decision on the relative merits of the question.

The Montana Debate Union was founded by Mr. Norvelle, the purposes of the organization being to furnish an opportunity for those interested in the work to get practical experience in discussion. Membership eligibility is restricted to students who have participated in at least one intercollegiate debate. Students not members are invited to take part in the open meetings. The officers of the Debate Union are: Charles Conley, president; Genevieve Murray, secretary; Carl MacFarlane, debate manager.

Dramatics

GEORGE CRONYN
Professor of Dramatics

Professor George W. Cronyn, director of dramatics, has been the moving spirit behind the Montana Masquers during the year 1924-1925. Under his direction, the Masquers produced three major plays and fourteen shorter pieces. Professor Cronyn is the author of the spring production, "Polly from Paradise."

Although he has never studied definitely toward that end, Professor Cronyn has been associated with dramatics since his college days. He enrolled in Columbia University in 1905, as a member of the class of 1910. In his sophomore year, he was elected editor of the year-book and of the monthly literary magazine, but did not return the following year to take up these positions.

During his two years at Columbia, Professor Cronyn was intimately associated with a group of men who have since become prominent in dramatics, including Phil Moeller, director of the Theater Guild in New York; Edward Goodman, of the Washington Square Players, and Joyce Kilmer, one of America's famous war-poets. A year later, at Harvard, he became a member of a similar group of which Kenneth MacGowan, director of the Provincetown Players;

The Sentinel

Hiram Moderwell, author of several books on the theater, and Robert Edmund Jones, prominent New York stage-designer, were members.

Leaving Harvard after two years, Professor Cronyn studied art at the Art League of New York, and later became head of the art department of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, America's most famous orphan asylum.

Resigning from his position with the Sheltering Guardian Society, he went to Canada, where he took up a homestead, and incidentally gathered the material for his play, "The Sandbar Queen," produced by the Washington Square Players during 1917 and 1918. After two years in Canada, Mr. Cronyn operated a fruit ranch in Oregon, where he married, moving to California shortly afterward, where he wrote scenarios for the motion pictures.

After a year in California, he accepted the position of stage-manager and scene-designer for the Indianapolis Little Theater. He resigned from this position after one year, and went back to New York, where he studied at Columbia and obtained his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1916, and his Master's degree a year later.

He taught at the DeWitt Clinton high school in New York for two years, but accepted a position with the Oakland Technical high school in California, where he remained for four years. After this period, he became manager of a fruit ranch in Oregon, where he wrote "49". From Oregon, he came to Montana.

Professor Cronyn is the author of "The Path on the Rainbow," a collection of Indian songs and chants, translated from the original dialects; of "The Sandbar Queen," produced by the Washington Square Players, 1917-1918; "The Greaser," 1915, produced as a curtain-raiser for "Under Cover"; of "Death in Fever Flat," produced by the University of California Little Theater, in 1920, and of "49," a novel, recently published by the Dorrance Company, 1925. In addition to his literary and dramatic work, Professor Cronyn has exhibited paintings at the Portland Art Museum, at the San Francisco Exposition, and at the John Herron Art Museum, in Indianapolis.

"FASHION"

From the standpoint of plays produced, the 1924-1925 season has been an unusually successful one for the Masquers. With the arrival of Mr. Cronyn, one of the outstanding figures in the Little Theater movement, the work of producing worthwhile plays has gone steadily forward, and despite great financial difficulties, three major plays and fourteen shorter productions were presented this year.

The season was opened with a revival of "Fashion," by Anna Cora Mowatt, actress playwright of the early 1840's. The piece was presented at the Liberty Theater, November 18 and 19. It was a satire on American life of 1845, the year that the play was originally staged, and as such, was an exceptionally difficult piece for amateurs. "Fashion" was very well cast, such persons as Albert Stark, Mary Fleming, Maureen Desmond, Howard Doggett, Ed Heilman and Katherine Roach carrying the leading roles.

The cast of "Fashion," and the managing and producing staff was as follows:

Adam Trueman, a Farmer from Cattaraugus	Albert Stark
Count Jolimaître, a European Importation	Ed Heilman

"EXPRESSING WILLIE"

"Expressing Willie," by Rachel Crothers, with "The Proposal," by Anton Tchekoff, as a curtain-raiser, was the second of the three major productions. This play, one of New York's sensational successes of last year, was produced February 6 and 7 at the Liberty Theater, for the first time outside that city, by the Masquers. It was due to Mr. Cronyn's untiring efforts that permission was finally granted by the owners of the piece.

"Expressing Willie" was one of the best and most successful efforts ever made by an amateur company. In this piece the acting was superb, the actors rising to great heights of emotion in the portrayal of their roles, and carrying their audiences spellbound throughout the entire production. Especially was this true of Helen Ramsey, who portrayed "Minnie Whitecomb" with a life and vivacity rarely seen in college dramatics, and of Dorris Levins, who carried the comical interest of the play, assisted very ably by Aaron Shall. As "Mrs. Smith," "Willie's" mother, Katherine Roach added another outstanding success to her long list of perfect character portrayals.

"POLLY FROM PARADISE"

In "Polly from Paradise," written and directed by Professor Cronyn, Helen Ramsey closed her University dramatic career in a blaze of glory. She carried the difficult role of "Polly" superbly, running the gamut of the emotions—from disillusionment and despair to joy and gaiety, from blazing hatred to love and tenderness. She "lived" her part—and she interpreted it as naturally, and as unaffectedly as everyday life. Both as the idealistic girl who longed to interpret the plays of Ibsen, and as the brazen pseudo cow-girl, she was real and convincing.

"Buck" Stowe, both as Larengren, the poet of vibrations, and as Clarence, the baggageman, added his usual spontaneous comedy to the piece, drawing a laugh with almost every line, and keeping the audience keyed up to the highest notch of attention. Nelson Fritz as Joe Martinbeck, song-writer, and Aaron Shull as Jimmie Cahill, sophisticated publicity agent, also carried their parts extremely well.

Speaking of the minor characters, and of the settings, The Mis-soulian said: "The small 'bits,' contributing atmosphere, both in New York and in Paradise, Montana, were, we thought, well done. The setting in the studio scene in New York and the wholly natural atmosphere of the railroad station set deserve mention."

Varsity Vodvil

"A Hot Afternoon in Montana," presented by Sigma Chi, was awarded one of the cups offered by the ASUM for the best fraternity act, and "The Diving Bell" won for Kappa Kappa Gamma the other cup for the most unique act presented by any sorority.

Of the thirteen acts entered in the tryouts February 27 and 28, six were eliminated, leaving four full stage acts and three front stage performances for the final presentation March 6 at the Wilma theater. The show was managed by Melvin Lord, assisted by Philip Ring.

Alpha Chi Omega opened the performance with "The Pullman Blues," a comic singing and dancing act with a pretty and graceful chorus. "Holy Moses" was next presented by Alpha Delta Alpha. This act was original and humorous, with pathos well faked throughout, and some good clog dancing featured. "A Dream Garden" by Delta Gamma, contained appropriate scenery, unique costumes, and exceptional lighting effects. "Myrtle of the Movies," presented by Alpha Phi, was a singing and dancing act built on the hopes of a girl to become a movie star. The Sigma Chi prize act, "A Hot Afternoon in Montana," took the form of a mock trial in which three professors of the University English department were charged with upholding "Hot Afternoons in Montana," and refusing to show due respect to the old masters, Milton, Shelley, and Poe. The second winning act, "The Diving Bell," by Kappa Kappa Gamma, displayed extraordinary and brilliant costumes and excellent lighting effects. "The Theatrical Booking Office," by Phi Delta Theta, was a novelty number of acrobatic work and a five piece orchestra.

HI-JINX

Hi-Jinx, annual razz vaudeville performance presented alternately by the men and women, was staged at the Wilma theater December 13, 1924, by the women of the University, with the purpose of letting the men "see themselves as others see them." The program follows:

1. Hear It and Weep, You Men.
2. The Band What Am—The Varsity Band. (Please take notice.)
3. Razz by Radio—Fraternities Beware.
4. Low Down a la Dance—Campus Fools Exposed.

Managing Committee—Katherine Roach, chairman; Marian Prescott, Catherine McRea.

Orchestra

THE UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY.

Under the direction of A. H. Weisberg.

The University Symphony orchestra has just completed its fifth season, during which two formal concerts, February 17 and May 11, were presented in Main Hall auditorium. The orchestra, which was organized by its present director, Professor A. H. Weisberg, aims to furnish the students an opportunity to learn the routine of symphony orchestra work and an outlet for the musical expression of those who want more than mere amusement from their music.

The present membership of the orchestra numbers 23, and the instrumentation nearly complete. The roster follows:

Violas—Grace Gwinn, Hildegard Weisberg, Mrs. George Weisel, Ruth Kiser, James Ritchey, Inez Hannes, Frances Dunn, Mrs. Gwinn, Mrs. L. E. Arnoldson, Greta Shriver, Dorothy Mueller, Everett Bruce, John Jarussi.

Viola—Sarah Mershon.

Cellos—Mrs. H. G. Merriam, Wallace Windus.

Double Basses—Mrs. A. H. Weisberg, John Dunn.

Flute—William Dunn.

Clarinet—Charles Lawrenson.

Cornet—Herbert Dunn.

Trumpets—A. De Pirro.

Piano—Lucille Rector.

The R. O. T. C.

The Military Science department, comprising a complete unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, is under the direction of Major George L. Smith, professor of Military Science and Tactics, and Instructors Captain R. L. Cummings and Captain Jack W. Howard, with the help of Sergeants W. H. Truman and M. Kirkwood. Three hundred forty-seven men, including the ROTC band and thirteen cadet officers, make up the organization.

The Grizzly Battalion was instituted on this campus in February, 1919, taking up quarters in Marcus Cook Hall. Since that time, under able leadership, the department has grown until two years ago the entire equipment, excepting the interior rifle range, was moved to its present quarters in the old hospital building, now devoted exclusively to the work of that department.

Along with the physical growth of the department has developed an unusual military science organization. This year, the battalion was one of two in the ninth corps area, comprising all such military departments in the states of Montana, Idaho, Utah, Nevada, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Washington, and Oregon, to receiving a superior rating.

The University allows fifteen credits toward graduation and a commission of second lieutenant in the organized reserve corps of the United States army, to each student who completes the four-year course. The ROTC will commission the following men this year: LeBrun Beckwith, Jay B. Loveless, H. E. Howitson, E. C. Bruce, W. W. Koek, Keith Brown, M. L. Burke and Emery Gibson.

The principal purpose of all military science is to train men for leadership in case of major emergency. It is one of the most important elements in our scheme of national defense. In addition to this importance, a proper course of military instruction, including discipline and training in the direct and practical methods of military procedure is one of the greatest benefits to the students in their future careers in civil life. The last two years of the course cover in proper sequence the training for an officer. Tactics, the most important and difficult subject, is given during the senior year. To the men who take this advanced course, the government pays approximately $250, which includes one summer encampment at Camp Lewis, Washington.

During the Charter Day exercises, the ROTC furnished guides who conducted visitors about the campus. Cadets also acted as guards at the Interscholastic track meet.

The Home Economics Club, made up of major and minor students in that department, has a threefold purpose. Its primary purpose is to stimulate interest in professional subjects related to home economics. Its social purpose is to create a means by which students in the department may become acquainted and may have interests other than classroom interests. Thirdly, the club from time to time sponsors teas, luncheons, and the like, to raise money for the establishment of a loan fund which will be used to benefit major students in the department. The club meets once each month to discuss its business.

The Mathematics Club, one of the oldest departmental clubs on the campus, was organized to further the interest and fellowship among the students of the mathematics department, and for the purpose of doing research in the background of the subject.

Meetings are held twice a month, where papers dealing with mathematics, science, and its masters are offered for discussion. The club, through the assistance of Professor A. S. Merrill, has made somewhat of a study of astronomy this year.

The club consists of twenty members, all of which are mathematics majors. Professor N. J. Lennes, Professor E. F. A. Carey, and Professor A. S. Merrill take an active interest in the affairs of the club.

The Press Club, open to every student enrolled in a journalism course, was first organized in 1914, soon after the courses in journalism were combined into a separate school. The purpose of the bi-weekly meetings of the club is to give the students an opportunity to hear journalism and its various fields discussed by faculty members and newspaper men who are in no way connected with the University.

The Press Club holds two traditional social functions each year, both in honor of Dean A. L. Stone. The Press Club banquet, held this year soon after the beginning of the winter quarter at the Tavern cafe, and Dean Stone Night, which took place during the latter part of May in Greenough park, were considered unusually successful.

The Law School Association

The Law School Association is an organization of law students, formed with the purpose of upholding the honor system of the school and managing all barrister activities. The association, which has a meeting once each month, is open to every student enrolled in the Law School.

A formal dance is given each year by the Law School Association, to which the entire student body is invited. During the spring quarter, a smoker is held in honor of the members of the local bar.

The officers are: Albert Stark, president; Einar Stromnes, secretary; Charles Conley, treasurer.

The Montana Alchemist Club

The Montana Alchemist Club, as it now exists, was reorganized in 1921, after having been inactive for more than a year.

Its purpose is to stimulate a general interest in chemistry and to provide a more intimate relationship among those interested in that subject.

Chemistry majors with a minimum of fifteen credits in chemistry are qualified for membership.

Meetings are held twice each month throughout the year, at which talks of chemical interest are given by the professors of the department or by members of the club.

For the year 1924-25 the officers are as follows: President, Hamline Kvalnes; vice-president, Clarence Beaman; secretary, Betty Custer; treasurer, Lawrence Warden. The other members are as follows: Harry Boucher, Arthur Christiansen, Irvin Merritt, Roberto Oliver, Herbert Robinson, Maynard Torrence, Doris Weatherill, Thelma Whipple, Wallace Windas, William Koch, Donovan Kvalnes, George Floyd.

All University women are eligible for membership to the University branch of the Young Women's Christian Association. The purpose of the organization is to promote friendliness, good fellowship and christian living among the women students on the campus.

The governing board of the organization is the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, composed of the officers and the chairmen of different committees. This cabinet is advised by Miss Helen Gleason. The advisory board, of which Miss Gleason is chairman, is made up of eight Missions women.

This year the Blue Angle Club room was opened by the Y. W. C. A. to all women students. A Christmas party, which is an annual affair, was held before the end of the quarter for the poor children of the city. On each Thanksgiving day, members of the Y. W. C. A. give a program at the county poor farm. At the Interscholastic track meet, the organization maintained a concession, the proceeds of which are to be used to send five delegates to the annual Seabock convention.

The University Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, despite the loss of one half its membership of a year ago, because of graduations, has had a highly successful year. Eugene J. Callaghan was elected treasurer of the State Department of Montana, at the annual state convention at Helena, and Vivian D. Corbly was elected National Executive Committeeman for the tenth district, at the annual convention of the national organization at Salt Lake.

The Disabled American Veterans of the World War is a national organization of men and women who were disabled while in the service of the United States during the World War. It was organized in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1920, for the purpose of assisting the disabled in matters of hospitalization, compensation, rehabilitation and legislation.

The University chapter, which was chartered October 10, 1921, has a membership of 36 disabled men who are students, or who have graduated from the University.

North Hall

North hall was opened in September, 1924, and the freshmen women of the class of '27 were the first to occupy the building. Direct supervision of the hall was under Dean Harriet Sedman, and Miss Grace Mountcastle was the social director. Shortly after school began, the house organized and elected officers. Upperclass women lived in the hall to advise the younger girls. A year was begun, and immediately a spirit of friendliness, hospitality and loyalty took root, the spirit which is characteristic of North hall.

This year the management of the hall was slightly changed. Dean Sedman had direct supervision, and Mrs. D. A. MacLennan assisted her until the beginning of the spring quarter when she resigned because of ill health. Mrs. Theodore Brantly was named to take her place. Officers were not elected, but their duties were carried out by the five sophomore girls, chosen by the Dean of Women, who lived in the hall as upperclass leaders. This year's leaders were Alice Lense, Eleanor Stephenson, Marguerite Hughes, Annabelle Desmond and Mary Jo Dixon.

Traditions were started by the women of the class of '27, and each has been carried out during this year. Shortly after school commences, stunt night is observed. Costumes of all sorts are worn to dinner, conventional mannerisms are disregarded, and a regular get acquainted gathering is held. Stunts are given by each floor, and a prize is awarded to the most original.

North and South halls observe jointly another tradition. Dinner guests are exchanged once every two weeks during the first part of the year, and in this way the freshmen men and women become acquainted.

A Christmas party is held just before the end of the first quarter. Names are drawn and gifts are exchanged among the girls. A Christmas tree, decorated and lighted, adds to the holiday spirit of the party.

Each quarter a dance is given by the girls of North hall. The hall is decorated to fit the occasion, whether the dance be formal or informal, and each girl invites a guest.

South Hall

South hall was first occupied by the freshman class of '27. The hall is a three story building with lobbies, study halls, and residence rooms on the main floors and servants' quarters, laundry rooms, and a refrigerator plant in the basement. The dormitory houses 115 students.

This year's residents met on November 1, 1924, and organized as the South Hall Club. Last year's constitution was re-adopted and the following officers were elected: Nelson Fritz, president; Edward Simoni and Sam Kain, vice-presidents; Carl Ruckman, secretary, and Marvel Barnes, treasurer. Marvel Barnes left school at the end of the fall quarter and Art Rottler was elected treasurer in his place.

South hall is one of the few dormitories in the country under student management. Ralph Neil, a senior in the School of Journalism, is the student manager, and Russel Niles, a senior in the Law School, is the assistant manager. The proctors are Einar Strommes, Norvald Ulvestad, Stanley Griffith and John Dimond. Everett Bruce has charge of the infirmary.

Besides the many firesides put on by various groups in South hall the club held two quarterly dances; the first taking place during the fall quarter and the second in the spring.

The club also voted to frame its group picture and hang it in one of the lobbies. An attempt will be made to get the picture of last year's club and hang it in the other lobby. At the same time a resolution was passed expressing the wish that each of the successive South hall clubs in the years to come will follow that example until finally it is hoped that it will merge into a tradition.

Craig Hall

OFFICERS

MARY SCHINDLER	President
MILDRED STORRY	Vice-President
ELIZABETH ALLEN	Treasurer
HENRIETTA WILHELM	Secretary

Freshmen and upper class women live at Craig hall, the dormitory on the campus which is known for its home-like atmosphere. Mrs. Theodore Brantley assisted Dean Sedman in the direction of the hall until the spring quarter when Mrs. Belle Turner took over her work. Mrs. Brantley was transferred to North hall, succeeding Mrs. MacLennan.

Dances are given each quarter by the Craig hall girls, and informal firesides are held frequently.

Margaret Whittinghoff was elected treasurer the first of the year, and upon withdrawal from school was succeeded by Doris Rowse. Elizabeth Allen was elected to the office when Doris Rowse withdrew at the end of the winter quarter.

Interfraternity Council

OFFICERS.

JACK NORVELL	President
HARRY WELTON	Vice-President
LAWRENCE ULVESTAD	Secretary and Treasurer

The Interfraternity Council, an organization composed of two delegates from each social fraternity on the campus, acts as a governing body in all matters pertaining to interfraternity activities. The council regulates rushing seasons, interfraternity athletic events, interfraternity social functions, and tends to promote good will and harmony among the different chapters.

Last year a progressive step was made toward eliminating enmity and ill feeling among fraternities by the abolition of interfraternity athletics. The vote was put to all fraternities who in turn instructed their council delegates as to the will of their respective chapters. At a later meeting of the council a majority voted against athletics and for the riddance of all cups and trophies awarded in previous years.

This year problems such as quantity buying, tax exemption of fraternity property, interpretation of the council's constitution and other minor matters have been brought before the representative body.

Alpha Kappa Psi

Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional business administration fraternity, was founded at the University of New York in 1904, immediately after the opening of the School of Commerce. Since that time, chapters have been installed in every university that supports a school of business administration. The local chapter was installed April 19, 1917.

The present officers of the chapter are: J. B. Loveless, president; L. M. Solberg, vice-president; Donald Buckingham, secretary; J. H. Davies, diary correspondent; A. F. Langmas, treasurer, and S. J. Coon, master of rituals. Other members of the chapter are: William Gallagher, Morris McCullom, Clarence Anderson, Karl Gallagher, Wallace Brennan, Everett Bruce, Martin Hudtloff, E. Newmack, H. Dunn, Eugene Callaghan, and Lynn Van Zandt. Walter Simpson, Arthur Neill, Paul Curtis, and Roger Fleming are pledges of the fraternity.

Membership in Alpha Kappa Psi is open to those majors in the School of Business Administration who have an average grade of "C" in their work.

Delta Phi Delta, which was founded at Kansas University in 1912, was installed upon the campus in 1919. The purpose of the organization is to further the interest in real art.

This fraternity was instrumental in bringing to Montana this year the famous Taos exhibit of fine paintings. The Delta Phi Delta exhibit, composed of the choicest work created by various members of the entire organization, was also shown here during the winter quarter.

Mu Chapter, University of Montana.

Delta Psi Kappa, women's national physical education fraternity, was founded at the Normal College of the American Gymnastic Union, on November 3, 1916. The chapter on this campus was established May 27, 1920. The object of the organization is to advance the thoughts and ideals of its members, to promote fellowship, and the best interests and welfare of physical education among college women. On the campus the group is active in the interests of athletics, and takes care of a large share of the work in producing the annual May Fete.

At present the chapter has thirty-one alumnae. Its three honorary members are Mrs. R. H. Jesse, Mrs. W. E. Schreiber, and Miss Rhoda Baxter. The active members are Catheryn McRae, Dorotha Rector, Marian Fitzpatrick, Dorothy White, Gertrude Lemire, Dora Dykins, Winifred Baptist, and Frances Crabb.

The officers are Dorothy White, president; Gertrude Lemire, vice-president; Dora Dykins, secretary, and Catheryn McRae, treasurer.

Lambda chapter of Gamma Epsilon Pi, women's national honorary commerce fraternity, made its appearance on the Montana Campus June 22, 1922.

Gamma Epsilon Pi was founded March 26, 1918. The objects of the fraternity are: To encourage and award scholarship along lines of business activity among women students and graduates of the colleges of commerce. To promote among the members a mutual fellowship and discussions of the aims and experiences in the field of business and the teaching of business. To encourage a more friendly attitude of the business public toward women graduates of the colleges of commerce.

Members are picked from the highest 15% of the junior and senior women registered in a four year college of commerce. Besides high scholarship a student must show marked business ability.

Gamma Epsilon Pi has 17 active chapters.

Theta Sigma Phi, national professional and honorary fraternity for women in journalism, was organized at the University of Washington in 1909, and Kappa chapter was chartered at Montana in 1916.

The purpose of the organization is to cooperate with the School of Journalism in the distribution of University news to the state press. The well-known publication, "Campus Ravings," which has become a Montana "razz" tradition, is edited by the members of Kappa chapter. Only junior and senior girls who are majoring in journalism are eligible to be pledged to the organization.

Officers for the year 1924-25 were: Margaret Anderson, president; Miriam Wayman, vice president; Luena Black, secretary, and Ellen Garvin, treasurer. Newly elected officers for next year are: Winnifred Wilson, president; Genevieve Murray, vice president; Mary Angland, secretary, and Anne Nilson, treasurer.

Members of Kappa chapter are: Margaret Anderson, Miriam Wayman, Ellen Garvin, Fern Marie Johnson, Luena Black, Myrtle Shaw, Doris Kennedy, Mabelle Mohrherr, Winnifred Wilson, Anne Nilson, Genevieve Murray, and Mary Angland.

Phi Sigma, honorary biological fraternity, was founded March 17, 1915, at Ohio State University, for the purpose of extensive scientific research. The fraternity was instituted at the University of Montana as Lambda chapter in 1919.

The scholastic requirement for membership is the earning of one-fourth the total number of credits in biology required for graduation at the beginning of the junior year. Members are chosen because they have shown special interest along biological lines, and it is felt they possess capability for future scientific work.

The magazine of the fraternity, "The Biologist," offers prizes each year for the best discovery in scientific research.

Silent Sentinel

Silent Sentinel, men's senior honorary fraternity, was founded in 1904 by Dr. O. J. Craig, president of the University, and Professor Robert Sibley. The first members were John M. Evans, Professor W. M. Aber, Professor H. B. Conliffe, B. E. Stewart, W. O. Craig, G. H. Greenwood, H. H. Hughes, C. E. Simons, and R. E. Walters.

In 1909, due to the opposition of President Duniway to secret organizations, Silent Sentinel became inactive. The fraternity was revived in 1921 and has been a factor in campus affairs since that time.

Members of Silent Sentinel are chosen for their services to the University. At the Interscholastic SOS members for the coming year are "tapped" by Dean A. L. Stone, from members of the Junior class. This spring Angus Meagher, Ted Ilman, Robert Harper, Louis Stevens, Woodard Dutton and Oscar Dahlberg were selected.

The present members of the organization are: Stanley Griffith, Archie Blair, Richard Crandell, George Dahlberg, Charles Guthrie, Fred Martin, Warren Maudlin, John Shaffer, Ralph Neill, Grant Silvernale, and Einar Strommes.

The Homecoming Mixer, held in the gymnasium October 10, marked the beginning of social events for the fall quarter. The dance was given in honor of former students and graduates of the University who were guests of the institution for Homecoming week, and was a delightfully informal affair.

The freshman class was socially welcomed into the ranks of the institution by the class of '27 at an informal dance held in the gymnasium November 8. Distinctive programs and decorations featured the dance, which was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Freeman and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Elrod.

The first formal ball of the fall quarter was the one which the Barristers held at the Winter Garden the evening of December 5. The Barristers' Ball, which is always one of the most elaborate dances of the school year, was very unique. Programs, in the form of legal documents, and 1 o'clock permission, were the features of the evening, with Sheridan's orchestra furnishing the music for the affair.

A seven-piece orchestra, made up of campus talent, provided music for an informal dance held in the gymnasium in November, given by the A. S. U. M. for the benefit of the Varsity band. Dean Harriet Rankin Sedman, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller, Mr. A. E. Atkinson and Captain and Mrs. Jack Howard were the chaperones for the dance.

The Sentinel

The social calendar for the new year began with the annual Pharmacy dance, held in the Winter Garden on January 16. Programs featuring the Pharmacy School were the outstanding issue of the evening.

As many men as could beg, borrow or steal dress suits were honored by the women of the University at the Co-Ed Formal, the night of Friday, February 13. The hall, draped in red and white crepe paper streams, gave the effect of a huge tent. Clever programs, good music, and punch added to one of the most outstanding events of the year.

Pine boughs, costumes, a typical "western" bar and a "feed" characterized the annual Foresters' Ball, held in the gymnasium on February 21. Sheridan's orchestra, dressed in kid clothes, played from a rustic platform constructed in the center of the hall. Prizes were given for the most original and the most western costumes on the floor. The programs for the dance were made of wood, with a pine tree done in green ink on the cover. Supper was served at midnight in the forestry building. Chancellor and Mrs. Melvin A. Brannon, President and Mrs. C. H. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Schreiber, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Spaulding, and Dean A. L. Stone and Miss Alberta Stone were the chaperones.

The Inter-Fraternity Formal held at the Winter Garden in February, was a very distinctive dance. Noise makers of all kinds were given out during the evening, and the programs were distinctly Japanese, done in black and gold.

The annual Military Ball was also held at the Winter Garden. A military note was given to the affair by means of programs, bearing an American flag. Officers of the R. O. T. C. wore uniforms. Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Atkinson and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller were the chaperones.

The Bear Paws and Tanans, entertained jointly at Greenough Park on April 18. An eight-piece orchestra furnished music for the informal, which is the first entertainment to be given by the two sophomore honorary organizations.

On May 8, Greenough Park pavilion was the scene of a delightful spring dance given by the members of the Pan-Hellenic. Spring leaves and flowers were used in the decorative scheme, and programs picturing an old fashioned girl were presented to the guests.

Members of the Montana Masquers and the Art League entertained at a Mardi Gras on the evening of March 14. This is the first Mardi Gras ever held in the institution and promises to be an annual event. Colorful decorations, confetti and costumes added to the carnival spirit. Features of the evening were stunts and side shows, and the crowning of Miss Kathleen Andrews as Queen of the ball.

The most elaborate dance of the school year was the Junior Prom given in the gymnasium May 23 in honor of the senior class. Crepe paper streamers and balloons in pastel shades covered the entire gym, forming a huge canopy. The feature of the dance was the crowning of the Prom Queen. This honor, conferred each year by popular vote of the junior class to a senior woman, was given to Miss Ellen Garvin, who was crowned on a huge throne at one end of the hall. Dainty hand painted compacts were favors for the women, and copper, silver and gold programs were presented to the guests at the dance. The chaperones were President and Mrs. C. H. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jesse, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Schreiber, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller, Mrs. Harriet Sedman and Mrs. Harry L. Wilson.

FOOTBALL

COACH SELICK CLARK

Although handicapped by a light, inexperienced line which gave little support to the Grizzly backs against heavy coast combinations, the State University of Montana emerged from the 1924 football season with the best record ever scored by a Missoula collegiate eleven. Four games were won of eight on the hardest schedule ever engaged by the Grizzlies. Sports writers throughout the west agree that if the Grizzlies were re-enforced by a line the equal of the backfield that Glen Warner, "Baggy" Bagshaw and a few other mentors would have had something to worry about.

There remains little or no doubt in the minds of both fans and football critics in Montana but that had the Missoula institution and the State College mixed, the Grizzly paw would have inflicted more than just injury to the Bob cat. For this reason, there can be no question as to the Grizzly top position in Montana intercollegiate grid iron circles.

Following is the record within and without the trophy case in the gymnasium:

Montana, 40; Mt. St. Charles, 7.
 Montana, 106; School of Mines, 6.
 Montana, 13; University of Idaho, 41.
 Montana, 14; Gonzaga University, 20.
 Montana, 7; University of Washington, 52.
 Montana, 20; Whitman, 0.
 Montana, 6; Pacific University, 7.
 Montana, 3; Stanford University, 41.

Montana finished in a tie for fifth in the Northwestern conference with Oregon Aggies and at the foot of the ladder in the Pacific Coast conference. However, it remains that although the Grizzly record at the end of its first year in the coast conference is at its lowest, critics who watched the

One Hundred Ninety-two

The Sentinel

Bill Kelly ALL-PACIFIC HALFBACK

Bruins in their major contests of the season predict a strong year for Montana in 1925.

One who prophesies gridiron results a year in advance is always subject to severe criticism by many but even the layman is able to comprehend that Montana's future in football for next year may be aptly compared to a geometric proposition in which, given a line and backfield with competent coaching, the proof will work itself out. With the return of the 1924 backfield and the development of a line of forwards, nothing in the football universe can keep Kelly, Sweet, Ilman and Sugrue down. The State University has the coaching and half the material.

Four Grizzlies loomed consistently as beacon lights in the Montana lineup throughout the season. Several others played rather spasmodically. The four were Kelly, Sweet, Shaffer and Ilman. Home-town fans too often are apt to underestimate the true worth of a "native son" on the gridiron. They reserve their true thoughts until more competent opinions are expressed and then are sincere in "I told you so." Such eminent football critics as Royal Bougham, sports editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer; Glen Warner, coach at Stanford; "Brick" Muller, George Varnall of the Spokane Chronicle; "Dud" De Groot, San Francisco Call; William Leiser, sports writer; "Baggy" Bagshaw, University of Washington coach; Central and N. E. A. Press syndicate critics, and half a hundred others have recognized the superior level to which Kelly has raised western football. Critics who "know their stuff" have referred to Kelly with nicknames varying from the "fighting Irishman" to "the all-American unknown to Walter Camp."

In every game of the season with the exception of one Bill scored at least one touchdown. He crossed Washington's goal the first time the Huskies were scored against last fall and the referee of the Stanford game admitted a grievous error in sounding his whistle too soon when it appeared that Kelly had been tackled. This deprived Montana's "Red" Grange of a touchdown. Idaho felt the sting of Kelly's score and Gonzaga was unable to cope with Bill's versatile play. Whitman and Pacific were powerless in trying to stop the Grizzly back as he dodged, stiff armed and sped his way down the field. A true triple threat man this Kelly—on both defensive and offensive—in passing, running and tackling. A perfect safety man and a terror in the open field.

Sweet, recognized as one of the greatest kickers west of the Mississippi river, is another Montana backfield man who wears a star. Statistics for the entire season show that he out-punted all opponents by an average of more than 10 yards to the boot. All season, Sweet concentrated his efforts on judging distance in kicking and has now learned to place the oval almost at will. This brings out the continued appeal for a strong line of forwards for next fall. Sweet gets his punts off fast enough to prevent their being blocked frequently but what could he do with confidence in a line.

When it comes to spearing passes out of the air when surrounded by rival gridlers, Sweet "takes the cake." A 10-second man on cinders, an educated toe, a developing defensive player—what more could a coach want to perfect a combination with a man of Kelly's caliber feeding the ball to him?

Ted "Chief" Ilman, hero of many Montana grid battles, has rightfully won the honor to lead Montana's Grizzlies on the field next fall. Ted is one of the most valuable defensive men on the squad and his ability to punch a line with his huge bulk puts him in real fullback class. Were "Chief" only able to back up the line on defense and plunge through opposing forwards he would still be a most valuable man, but his ability on the receiving end of the aerial game makes him an indispensable cog in the offensive machine. With good interference and strong forwards who could at least weaken an opposing front if not make holes in it, Ted would always be good for big yardage through the center of the line.

Montana humbled the Saints from Mt. St. Charles, 40-7, after a listless game in which the Hilltoppers led at half time, 7-0. It was the last part of the third quarter and the fourth frame before the Grizzlies managed to pull themselves together in any kind of form. Had the game continued at the same pace set in the first half the visitors might have returned with a victory. Until the last quarter it was a good sand-lot game.

"Guess I'll see just how much there is to 'em," must have been Billy Kelly's thought at the start of the game against Montana State Mines at Butte October 25. On the first play of the game, Kelly ran back the kick off from his own 10 yard line for a touchdown. He went through the middle of the Mines string and the game from that moment until the final blast was a virtual track meet with the Bruins measuring the Orediggers to a 106-6 count. The Mines' score resulted from a fumble.

Big "Chief" Illman netted five touchdowns during the course of the game, and Sugrue and Griffin each crossed the line three times. Kelly and Sweet scored twice each and Maudlin once. Sweet converted nine field goals; Sugrue one.

Coach Clark used virtually every man he took to Butte. The score at half time was 53-0. It was in the third period that the second string went on shift. The "Honolulu" team played havoc with the Mines string, scoring exactly the same number of points during the last two quarters as the first lineup had succeeded in cornering during their rampage.

Although heralded as a reasonably strong team in reports received in the Grizzly camp previous to the game, Pacific University was unable to withstand the terrific line smashing and aerial offensive of the Grizzly backs and the Badgers fell to a decisive 61-7 defeat in the first conference victory of the home club in Missoula November 8. By completely outclassing the visitors in every department of the game, the Grizzlies satisfied a vast store of revenge which had been brewing since the meager defeat administered Montana the previous year at Portland.

The Montana team played one of its best games of the season against the Pacific warriors and it is difficult to choose individual stars. Big John Shaffer, center, was the outstanding lineman. No yardage was made through Shaffer and he broke through consistently for tackles. Kelly completed 9 of the 11 passes he tossed, scored three of the Montana touchdowns and registered 143 yards in 20 scrimmage plays. Sweet not only outpunted Weber by 10 yards but his average of 47 yards is his highest of the season.

Pacific made its lone score as the result of a forward pass, Emerson to Weber, which netted 65 yards. Sweet caught Weber after he had traveled 30 yards but Emerson carried the oval across the line after a series of line bucks had placed it on the one-yard mark. Emerson kicked goal.

In the third quarter Kelly was forced to retire from the game as the result of a wrenched arm and wrist received when he was tackled 10 yards behind the goal line.

Montana not only broke the jinx by beating Whitman college for the first time on the Missionary field on November 22 but this victory also earned the Grizzlies a tie with Oregon Agricultural College for fifth place in final standings of the Northwest conference. The score of the game was 20-0.

Playing on a rain-soaked, muddy field, the Grizzlies battered Whitman to a decisive defeat. For the second time during the season, the crowd in the stands rose to cheer Kelly for spectacular work the Montana all-star quarter displayed. This was at half time.

That a muddy field failed to effect the Grizzly passing game is evidenced by the fact that 3 of 7 aerial attempts were completed. Whitman was successful in 4 of 12 tosses.

Kelly and Sweet again counted the scoring for the Grizzlies, the former making two touchdowns. Sweet crossed the goal once and converted 2 out of the 3 tries for goals from placement.

A 15-yard penalty prevented the Grizzlies from scoring in the first quarter but a long run by Kelly and a pass placed the oval on the 35-yard line. Kelly packed the ball to the one-yard line on a fake criss cross and punched the Whitman wall for a touchdown on the next play. The second score was made soon after Kelly counted. Sweet smashed through tackle for 25 on the first play after a Whitman punt and then skirted the end for another 16. Kelly, Ilman and Sweet carried the ball to the one yard line and Sweet crashed through for the second touchdown. He converted.

Two Hundred Plus

The third touchdown was made by Kelly at the end of the third period when he punched tackle for 28 yards. Sweet again kicked successfully.

When the Grizzlies report for practice in the spring three veterans who have held berths on the lineup for three years will be missing. John Shaffer, center; Mandlin, tackle, and Captain Grant Silvernale, substitute quarter, played their last game with Montana against Whitman.

The hardest tonic of the season to down was the 20-14 defeat swallowed out of the spoon of Gus Dorais whose Gonzaga Bulldogs turned a 14-0 defeat at the end of the first half into ultimate victory on Dornblaser field here November 1. Replete with spectacular playing, the annual battle between Montana and the Spokane visitors afforded as good a game as has been seen on the Missoula field for some time.

Scene 1 with Kelly and Sweet boosting Montana into the lead with their sensational runs developed into Scene 2 with the Grizzlies fighting desperately to hold the staunch steam-roller forward line of the Bulldogs from opening holes in the lighter opposing wall for Bross, Ingram and Stockton to gallop through for decisive gains.

A reversed decision which returned the ball to Gonzaga when Sweet punted, a Gonzaga man touched it as it rolled out of bounds and a Montana man recovered it turned defeat into victory for Dorias. This break was followed by a march down the field from the 50 yard mark which put the oval into a position from which Bross could squeeze himself through a key-hole in the line for a touchdown.

Two touchdowns made by Gonzaga in the fourth quarter spelled Montana's defeat. In 15 brief minutes, Mel Ingram, star halfback, toted the pigskin across the barrier for a brace of touchdowns, Stockton converted twice in three attempts.

When the haze of the struggle had cleared away, it was the brilliant fight Montana staged that was the comment of the evening rather than the three Gonzaga touchdowns which over-balanced the pair Kelly and Sweet made.

A quarter and a half passed without a score in the first half. Punts in all parts of the field set each team back plenty of yards after the ball had been rushed down the field by one combination or the other. It was as perfect a booting duel between Sweet and Stockton as one would care to watch. The Montana star had the advantage of 7-yard average on his punts as compared with those of "Stocky" Stockton.

In the middle of the second period, Gonzaga lost the ball on downs when a pass failed. Sweet dropped back on a fake punt formation and raced around Gonzaga's left for 76 yards and the initial touchdown of the game. Perfect interference by Kelly and Sugrue made possible Sweet's counter. Sweet kicked goal.

Mandlin kicked off to Stockton who returned the ball 25 yards. With Bross thrown for a loss of 2 yards after Stockton had made 7 on two tries, the burly quarter punted 35 to Kelly who repeated his performance at the University of Washington in weaving his path through the middle of the Gonzaga team for 70 yards and a touchdown. Sweet again made good his placement.

A second break in the game cut a deep gash in the morale of the Grizzly team when Montana was declared off-side and Stockton's placement, after Ingram's first touchdown, went wild but was allowed as a penalty. This knotted the score, which otherwise would have been 14-13, with Montana in the lead.

Particular mention is due Varney, guard, who played his first varsity conference game against Gonzaga in a manner which won praise from the stands. Shaffer, center, and Martinson, guard, also played stellar games. The entire line did exceptionally well to hold the powerful Gonzaga forwards in place during the first three quarters of the game. Tired by Gonzaga's highly developed hammer-mill interference, the Bruin line could not have been expected to buck up against Dorias' stubborn attack in the final frame.

Playing a stellar game throughout four quarters, the heavier University of Idaho team steam-rolled their way to a 41-13 victory over the Grizzlies in Missoula October 11. Lack of weight and experience in the Montana line was responsible for the defeat, coupled with the superior play displayed by the invading eleven. The Idaho team presented the finest style of play seen on Dornblaser field in the last two years.

Kelly and Sweet were by far the outstanding players on the Grizzly eleven. Time after time plunging Idaho backs dived through Montana's weak line and through the secondary defense only to be stopped by Kelly, who played safety. Many times three and four men were split by Kelly as he dove through Idaho interference for tackles.

Although Stivers, Kleffner and Cameron, Idaho backs, showed up brilliantly, the entire Moscow team worked as a unit. Sweet and Kelly made the two touchdowns scored against Idaho. Early in the second quarter Sweet missed a place kick from the 40-yard line by a hair's breadth. Stivers punted 32 yards to Sweet who returned 10. Kelly passed 10 yards over Idaho's line to Sweet who raced across the goal.

Montana's second touchdown came in the last half when Kelly dove through the opposing line two yards. A pass, Kelly to Sweet, for 18 yards, followed by a run around left end for the same distance by Kelly and two line smashes by Kelly and Sweet led up to the score. Sweet converted one out of two placements attempted after touchdowns.

Idaho found it useless to play a punting game in the early part of the game since an average of nearly 10 yards was lost on each boot, so superior was the Montana kicker. Sweet averaged 45½ yards to the punt; Idaho 36. The two teams completed and failed on the same number of passes.

"A glorious defeat in which Kelly was the only undefeated member of a defeated team." That and similar quotations answer for the smashing 52-7 beating Bagshaw's Huskies at the University of Washington dealt the Grizzlies on October 18. When the battle was written into the folds of memory, critics who had witnessed the fray hailed Bill as the greatest open field runner and safety man who had ever played against Washington.

In perfect harmony with the glory fans smothered on Kelly were the laurels given Sweet, star Montana punter, oval totter and receiver of passes. Here is one of the many criticisms made on Sweet's performance: "Sweet, Grizzly punter, with a kick of 59 yards from behind his own goal line and other long, well placed boots, caused the crowd to gasp as his kicks sailed over the head of the Washington safety man. When Sweet left the game, the crowd was disappointed and Washington coaches breathed easier. The fact that Sweet was out of the game was responsible for at least three Washington touchdowns and he would possibly have been able to score one on the Huskies himself had he remained in the battle. With Sweet out of the game, Montana loses its most valuable offensive cog."

It was the Montana team which crossed Washington's goal line the first time during the 1923 season, but it was Kelly who repeated the feat twelve months later. Kelly, who, when deprived of a touchdown when he tore along the side lines for 65 yards and was called out of bounds 55 yards from where he had started his great run, returned a Washington kick across the line from his own 25-yard line a few minutes later. A spectacle that not only saved the Grizzlies from a complete shut out in scoring but one which caused 15,000 fans to rise as a single person in the big Seattle stadium and give Kelly the greatest ovation ever received by an individual on the new Purple gridiron. Griffin converted by placement on the try for point after touchdown.

The Montana team fought a losing game throughout the contest. Again the superior backfield of the Bruin combination lacked the support of a line of equal strength. Mandlin, Meagher, Shaffer and Sigrue were other outstanding players on the team in the Washington game.

Montana bumped into a snag when she met Stanford at Palo Alto. It was the same old story as in other Pacific Coast conference games last fall. The score was 41 to 3 with the Cardinals on top and the same Grizzly stars were the principal luminaries of the contest. It was all Kelly, Sweet and Shaffer.

Sweet scored three points by a placement from the 20-yard line after experience had taught the Grizzlies that they couldn't contend with the weight and experience Glen Warner pitted against them.

Instead of wasting space with excuses the following statistics will explain themselves:

Stanford line, 184 pounds.

Montana line, 169 pounds.

Stanford backfield, 188½ pounds.

Montana backfield, 176 pounds.

Everywhere Billy Kelly played football last fall he was accorded the same distinctive praise. At Stanford he repeated his performances, although he did not score. Bill probably played his best game at Palo Alto—at least he played good enough ball to win a berth as halfback on Warner's all-coast team. As at Washington, the plucky Irishman was robbed of a touchdown when he was called back from a run the length of the field by a mistaken whistle. The referee thought that when Kelly fell to his knees he was tackled and he blew his whistle just as the Montana flash regained his footing and was tearing down the field for a touchdown. The official could do nothing but admit his error after the game.

It was in the Stanford game that Kelly and Sweet broke loose with an aerial attack that had required all season to perfect. Completing 7 out of 13 passes for a total of 119 yards was a feat the California gridlers believed impossible for a Montana team.

The Grizzlie's threatened Stanford's goal four times during the game. At the end of the first quarter, it looked as though Clark's proteges had sprung a surprise on Stanford but such was not intended by the goals of the gridiron sport. The first opportunity the Grizzlies had to score was checked on the three-yard line when Warner sent several first string players into the game as substitutes. Sweet dropped back to the 20-yard line and booted a perfect field goal from placement the second time the Bruins endangered the Cardinal goal. A pass too high by inches could not be caught behind the goal line at another time, and the fourth chance was stopped when Stanford held Ilman on the one-yard line and attempted to push the ball over from the 17-yard line resulted in the oval being lost on downs.

Fans on the campus are too apt to discredit the merits of the yearling football squad which represented the State University of Montana last fall in games with two schools. This comment is largely due to the fact that those who criticise fail to realize that their judgment is based upon a comparison with the 1923 Cub combination which won the championship of the Northwest conference for the first time a Montana team ever gained such distinction.

The 1923 freshman team included the cream of the state in Kelly, Sweet, Varney, Cogswell, Fletcher, Tom Kain and DeVelar. Those from outside the state were Place, Levin, Ritter and Burrell. Truly, Harry Adams had exceptional material to work with. There is no comparison with the freshman teams of the two years.

When it is considered that nearly all regular members of the 1923 Cub team earned letters this last season, it is easily seen that the football men of the class of '28 are suffering a great injustice when their accomplishments are judged by the record scored the previous year.

The Cub team of last fall will contribute three or four possibilities for varsity material next season. These are Vierhus, a giant tackle, who played a stellar game in both conflicts on the freshman schedule; Kain, a backfield man who is needed to run interference; Schults, who will probably be used for the same purpose, and Meagher, a husky tackle who gives everything he has in the game. Montana can use several men of the caliber of Vierhus and Meagher in the line. Both of these men will most likely find their place soon after the season starts.

By taking advantage of breaks in the game and using superior tactics and greater weight against the State University of Montana Cubs, the Cougar Kittens from Washington State College found ample revenge for the 28-0 defeat the previous year in smothering the Grizzly yearlings by a 36-0 score on Dornblaser field here October 25.

While the varsity and "Honolulu" teams were engaging in a dual "track meet" with the State School of Mines at Butte, the Cubs were fighting a losing battle on the home grid.

Eleven first downs were made by the Montana team as compared with 9 by the Kittens, while Montana succeeded in 7 forward passes as compared with 2 by the W. S. C. team.

Vierhus, Meagher and Brittenham were the outstanding luminaries on the Cub line, while Schultz and Kain showed up well in the backfield. Meeker, Cougar quarterback, stood head and shoulders above any other member on the visiting team, but Clay and Barnhardt made gains consistently. Exley, end, looked good also.

Baffled by the attack Mt. St. Charles college offered, the Cubs succumbed before the Saints in an uneven game at Helena October 18, which finally ended 28 to 0. Passing failed against the defensive tactics employed by the Hilltoppers and Risteen's toe proved too effective the only time the Cubs reached the Helena five yard mark.

BASKETBALL

Winning nine out of the 19 games on their schedule was the record set by the Grizzlies during the basketball season. Many of the followers of the sport who have the keenest sense of rivalry with the State College labeled the season as unsuccessful; others who had their eyes set on results of games with larger schools in the Pacific Coast conference are of the opinion that the victory over Coach Edmondson's Huskies of the University of Washington more than made up for the defeat doled out from the pitchforks of the Aggies.

However the case may be, Coach Stewart seemed to be playing tag with a jinx the greater part of the season and especially when the team went on trips. When Jim started the season he was faced with the task of molding around a nucleus of last year's varsity a new string of sophomores. This meant teaching the short-passing game and other varsity tricks to new material, and it is only natural that the best part of the season was necessary to perfect the new combination.

Ted "Chief" Ilman, captain elect of the basketball and football teams for 1925-26, was accorded center on Bill Mulligan's all-Northwest basketball team and given the same berth on the all-Pacific Coast conference five. The "Chief" also garnered the greatest number of points during the season, scoring a total of 162.

Captain George "Jiggs" Dahlberg played his usual stellar game at forward throughout the season. He made 139 points, rating second on the individual scoring list for the season. To Oscar "Os" Dahlberg goes equal merit. It was Oscar whose name was found in the headlines after nearly every contest as the one who played the star game for the Montana quint. Oscar, and his running mate, "Russ" Sweet, made up the combination which made itself known throughout the conference for their exceptional guarding. In more than one game, the op-passing team was forced to make its scores from past the foul line as the result of the flashy guarding their pair of guards effected. Sweet was named universally as one of the best guards in the conference, and is feared by all the larger schools.

No less credit can be given Baney, forward, who came out third on the individual scoring ladder with a total of 65 points. Baney played through the season with little notice and less credit from the casual spectator on the side lines. Baney's greatest work was clearly shown in the final two games of the year with the Bobcats at Bozeman. The Aggies could not understand why their long-shot flash, Hartwig, was unable to score from the middle of the floor as frequently as he had been able to do in former games — they didn't know that Baney was hanging on him like a leech every minute of the struggle.

No less honor can be given Kelly, Carney, Coyle, Jimmy Graham and Berg, who, although they played on the "sub" list, contributed their parts to the success of the team. These men, along with those who will remain from last winter's team, will make up a nucleus for Coach Stewart which may prove to be one of the strongest teams in the conference next year.

Both Oscar and George Dahlberg have played three years of basketball for Montana and competed in their last intercollegiate games in this sport against the Aggies. Both will be long remembered on this campus for their athletic prowess. In football they were equally superior. Montana will lose two of the finest athletes who ever played on Dornblaser field when the Dahlberg brothers pass from the campus.

Montana opened its basketball season with a game with the North Dakota Aggies, winning by a 25 to 24 score. Previous to this game, the Aggies had been on a barnstorming trip throughout the Northwest and had won but one game. This started things with a bang and set the student body out on a big start, the game being played the first day of school. Whitman met defeat on the Missoula floor 33 to 28, but Washington State humbled the Grizzlies by long shooting the following week by a 28 to 17 score.

Montana recovered itself a few days later and nosed the Idaho Vandals out of a close game, 31 to 27. Then started the first fatal western trip on which Stewart's quint fell by the wayside disastrously. Long trips, little sleep, and a schedule against the best teams in the northwest one night after the other contributed to the following results:

Grizzlies, 27; U. of Washington, 39.
Grizzlies, 22; Oregon Aggies, 24.

Grizzlies, 24; University of Oregon, 33.
Grizzlies, 34; Multnomah Club, 17.

The Oregon Aggies game, as indicated by the score, was the closest defeat the Grizzlies received on the first trip. Reports of the contest told of how the game was fought nip and tuck all the way through. A long shot from the center of the floor broke a knotted score for the winning count in the last minute of the game. This was misfortune for the Montana string, since the Oregon Aggies finally won out in the northern section of the Pacific Coast conference and won the right to meet the University of California in the titular game.

Returning to Missoula, the Grizzlies won a brace of games from the Gonzaga Bulldogs by wide margins. The Montana Aggies came here for a pair of contests the following week, the Grizzlies making it 50-50. The latter took the first game by a six-point margin, 28 to 22. The following night, Stewart's proteges started the evening with a splash and ran up a big score before the Aggies found the hoop for a single tally. But Hartwig went mad and Cottam contributed his efforts to beat the Grizzlies out in the home stretch by a 26 to 28 advantage. And Ott Romney's proverb reading, "My lads, do best on the home sport," was all but false.

The Aggie games made it "tough" for the Grizzlies, who left a few days later on a second western invasion. Played out by the recent struggles and their spirit next to broken, another series of defeats were administered the varsity. They beat the Whitman Missionaries 33 to 28, but were overcome by a 32 to 17 score at Pullman when they tangled with the Cougars of Washington State college. Idaho swamped the University quint 41 to 17, and Gonzaga took revenge by a 44 to 35 count.

The big triumph of the year came after a few days' rest when the University of Washington went down to defeat, 33 to 28, in one of the fastest and most closely contested games ever seen in Missoula. The Huskies, playing their first hoop contest in Missoula in the history of the school, failed in a last minute rally. It was Montana that rallied, rather than the Huskies. The renowned Hesketh, like Hartwig, couldn't locate the nets, and Coach Edmundson depended much on Bob to win the game.

The last games on the schedule were played in Bozeman against the Montana Aggies. The championship of intercollegiate circles in Montana was at stake, but the Grizzlies couldn't compete with the scoring machine of the Bobcats. The two games resulted 28 to 17, and 16 to 15. Time after time the "Chief" fought his way through Romney's defense but his efforts were submerged by those of the Aggies. Montana, it is true, was troubled to the extreme by the glass back boards in the Aggie gymnasium—they were truly buffaloed, but on close-ups the Grizzly hoopsters were equally unable to connect.

TRACK

CAPTAIN ANTALL

Beating the Aggs was great but, Oh, Min! "them" relays! If a Montana team ever distinguished itself it was at Seattle on that sunny afternoon last May 14. Hee Edmundson, Husky mentor, met his second heart breaking collapse that afternoon when the Grizzlies tied his dashing elder stars in the number of events won at the carnival. The program of events was a well-picked one for the Huskies but not well enough selected because Hee walked right into Montana's best when he slated the half-mile relay and the medley classic.

To Russell Sweet went the honors of the day. Joie Ray and his running partner, Ray Dodge, both Illinois Athletic club and also Olympic stars, were engaged as the feature of the day in their mile race but "sore legs, lack of training, et cetera," ruined the day for them. Russ "stole the show" and not only made it possible to win the half-mile relay in a flashy manner, but he also brought home the silver cup awarded the winner of the special 100 yard dash.

Jim Stewart's proteges brought home record times in all track events Montana was entered in, namely, the century, and the half-mile and medley relays. Al Blumenthal placed third in the special shot put.

So far Russ has been given all credit, but a small, skeleton-like bit of humanity which answers to the name of Gillette was right at the top when the time of giving laurels came around. It was a sight for sore eyes to see Arnie top off the medley relay race in the last 1320 yards. Starting his flight 20 yards behind the leading runners, he ran the three laps at the rate of a 4:20 mile and came in first by a good margin, surprising the best on the field and churning out a decisive victory for sports-writers to pound out on their mills that night.

Without question, Washington State College had the strongest track and field team in the northern section of the Pacific Coast conference last spring. Montana's first test of strength came early in the season when the Grizzly string hiked over to Pullman to meet the Congar aggregation. There were 17 Montana men on the bus that pulled up in front of the Pullman gymnasium and "Doc" Rohrer "marvelled well" at the sight.

The victory over W. S. C., the first since 1906 and the second in the history of track meets between the two schools, was an overwhelming one for Montana. The score at the end of the afternoon was Montana, 73; W. S. C., 58. All but two of the athletes who made the trip brought in points.

The "Exponent," State College "literary" weekly, started to make apologies and excuses two weeks before the annual meet between the State University and Ott Romney. A string of "outstanding" victories, including a triangular frame-up between Mt. St. Charles, the Aggs and Intermountain Union at Helena resulted in a "singular" victory for Ott. The following week Ott came to the Garden City and rumor has the following conversations between visitors at the interscholastic track meet and himself the day before the meet:

Says Ott: "I have a 10 flat man—but he isn't fast enough THIS year. I have a 53 seconds man in the quarter—but he isn't fast enough THIS year. Yes, and I have a 22 plus man in the 220—but he isn't fast enough THIS year. Guess we won't win the meet THIS year." The final result was Montana, 95; State College, 54.

Eight new track records were hung up on Dornblaser field in the Montana-Idaho dual meet. The Grizzlies romped on Matthew's Vandals for a 79 to 52 win, closing the most glorious season ever experienced by a State University track team. Of the seven new records, six of Montana's new local track marks were made by Grizzlies. It was a great day for Coach Jim Stewart and a greater day for the school itself.

The relay, which was the last athletic event on the old field, was as fitting a victory as the few veteran grads who witnessed it could hope for. The state record was broken by 6 2 5 seconds, and better still, the east conference record of 3:26 2 5 minutes was bettered. The four Grizzly team which ran the mile relay in 3:24 minutes flat, comprised as lead-off man Russ Sweet, followed in turn by Davis and Stark, with Milt Ritter, racing the final episode, which decided the victory.

Sweet, giant Grizzly sprints-wonder, again ran record time in the 220-yard dash when he turned in a 21 2 5 seconds time. In the century Russ tied his former state record of 9 4 5 seconds. Thompson of Idaho, who ran second in the race, asked Russ after the race for Sweet's own personal comment on how he ran his record dash.

Said Thompson: "I didn't see you at the 100-yard mark and I was afraid I was going to beat you. Tell me, Russ, how do you run the first 100 yards of the race?"

"About three quarters speed," said Sweet.

"I thought so," remarked Thompson.

Little "Cal" Pierce surprised the field when he jumped into the varsity class by breaking the state record in the javelin throw. He hurled the spear 161 feet 6 inches. Coyle, who broke two poles in the vault and still kept on trying for a new record in spite of this disaster, attained his own record height of 11 feet 7 inches. Sweet set up a new record in the broad jump at 21 feet 11 1/2 inches. Powers of Idaho, probably the sweetest hurdler who ever performed on Dorn-blaser field, topped the lower sticks in 24 9/10 seconds. Archibald, Idaho, bettered the half mile record held by Barney, Montana State College, when he ran the race in one minute 59 seconds.

Well, here's the summary of records which toppled or were equalled in the meet:

Sweet, 100 yard dash, tied his own record of 9 4/5 seconds.

Sweet, 220 yard dash, broke former record held by Andrews and Sterling.

Time: 21 2/5 seconds.

Powers, Idaho, low hurdles, new track record in 24 9/10 seconds.

Sweet, broad jump, new record. Distance: 21 feet 11 1/2 inches.

Coyle, pole vault, tied own record of 11 feet 7 inches.

Pierce, javelin throw, new record of 163 feet 6 inches.

Archibald, Idaho, new track record in the half mile, formerly held by Barney of Montana State College. Time: 1:59 minutes.

Mile relay, new record, 3 minutes 24 seconds flat. Quarter composed of Sweet, Davis, Stark, Ritter.

Following is a statistical table showing complete results of the Montana-Idaho meet:

Mile run—Gillette (M), 1st; Sowder (I), 2nd; Lowary (M), 3rd. Record: 4:27 1/10.

100 yard dash—Sweet (M), 1st; Coyle (M), 2nd; Davidson (I), third. Record: 9 4/5.

CARL WOOD

The big question on the lips of every baseball fan on the campus today is not whether the Grizzly club will come out of the schedule victorious this spring but whether baseball will be ousted from the conference next spring. There are supporters on each side of the question, and the most ardent have been voicing their opinions on the subject for some time.

The consensus of opinion in the conference, according to reports, seems to be that baseball is too much of a money-loser to continue supporting it as a collegiate sport. Reports received in the Montana camp are to the effect that the University of Washington is the only school in the northern section of the conference which wants to retain the schedule in baseball. Official opinion on the Montana campus seems to be against trying to support it in the future and the conference meeting should bring out some result by the time this book is distributed to the students.

This year marked the debut of several new prospects on the diamond. Probably the most highly recognized of the first year men is Kelly, all Pacific coast quarterback and all American honorable mention halfback in football last fall. Kelly played behind the plate consistently throughout the season, with the exception of one game in which he was injured. Then there is Carl Wood, fielder and substitute catcher, who got his turn at the wheel. And there were several others.

Jimmy O'Connor did nobly on the mound throughout the season. At the time this story is written, he had won the only two games for Montana. This does not mean that other men did not do their part. Hanson lost a tough 2-1 game to Washington State College. Hanson started the season with hopes of playing third base and also took a whirl at other positions in the infield.

COACH CUMMINGS

Two Hundred Thirty-one

There is probably no man on the baseball diamond this year who deserves more credit than does "Cap" Cummings, who was also one of the coaches of the freshman football team a year ago. The captain has put much time into athletics out of his own free will and he can be assured the thanks of the student body who appreciates his efforts. He was an inspiration to the men of the teams and a "regular fellow" as "boss." He will leave many friends on the State University of Montana campus when he leaves this spring for other work.

Winning two out of the first eight games on the schedule was more than most fans on the campus would predict for the Grizzly nine this spring. The surprising part of this record lies in the fact that both of these victories were won while the team was on its trip. However, it is granted that Gonzaga brought a good team to Missoula early in the season. "Hit 'em and take 'em" seemed to be the slogan of the Bulldogs.

Holding the University of Washington to but one run in the whole game, with such men as "little" Louie Tesreau on the end of the stick, was a feat in itself. With the Sentinel going to press before the end of the season, it is impossible to get reports on all the games in the book. Following are the results up to the time of going to press:

Montana, 0; Gonzaga, 6.	Montana, 1; Washington State College, 2.
Montana, 5; Gonzaga, 11.	Montana, 3; University of Idaho, 1.
Montana, 0; U. of Washington, 1.	Montana, 6; Gonzaga, 9.
Montana, 6; University of Washington, 7.

All Alone, or

The Sad Story of the Well-Known Case and the Rashful Boy

Aber Day had drawn to a close. "High Court" was finished and the soft gloom of the spring twilight had sifted gently down over the campus which had resounded to feminine squeals and the lusty "whack!" of paddle upon soft flesh. The campus was quiet. Except for the faint sound of music, and the muffled scrape of shoes upon the gymnasium floor, there was no indication of life.

Inside the gym, however, there was life and light, and music. The bright dresses and faces of the co-eds blended harmoniously into varicolored bouquets of femininity, emphasized by the sombre hues of the men's costumes. Every fraternity and sorority was represented, each forgetting for the hour, its petty jealousies and hatreds. The day's labor had fused factions into a harmonious whole—for the time being.

Among the dancers moved one who was grace and beauty personified. Her slender body swayed to the music, blending into it, vivifying it, and making of the crashing syncopations an harmonious melody. Her smile, and the frank friendliness in her eyes, lighted up the huge room with an indefinable glow which reflected into the eyes of the other dancers, and caused them too, to glow with the same friendliness. She was Youth, feminine, glorious and wonderful beyond belief.

Men from every class—seniors and freshmen—gathered around her, begging of her the favor of a dance. Her progress around the floor was a succession of "enters in". Brawny athletes, bearing upon their chests the proof of their prowess on field or floor, vied with sleek haired "social hounds" and bespectacled Kappa Tau's for the heavenly privilege of standing beside her between dances. Staid professors who wore upon their watch chains the square key of Phi Beta Kappa, waltzed solemnly with her until some lad on the verge of final probation cut in and bore away the wondrous girl.

Gradually, the competition narrowed down to four men, all of them athletic stars of the first magnitude—at Montana. The other men, the "social hounds" and the Kappa Tau's, dropped out of the race, fearing possible consequences. The faculty members were tied down with wives.

* * * * *

"Home Sweet Home." The orchestra blared wearily. Aber Day dance was over. The few remaining couples filed toward the door. The musicians began to pack their instruments.

The Sentinel

The Queen looked about her. Her four admirers had disappeared. She was alone. The crowd had left the gym and the janitor was beginning to turn out the lights. Mystified, she started to walk slowly down the stairs, and out into the star-sprinkled night. No one anxiously awaited her.

The girl who had been Queen went home alone, weeping bitterly, and hating all men.

She did not—she could not know that at the end of the last dance her four brawny athletes had looked despairingly at each other, each suspecting one of the others of having been granted the sweet privilege of escorting the girl to her sorority house.

And so, the girl who had been Queen went home alone.

Beta Delta of Sigma Chi is a truly democratic organization. This picture, taken the day after formal pledging last fall, proves beyond a doubt that the Iron Crossers are willing and anxious to hang the blue and white button on such members of the freshman class as the Phi Deltas pass up.

The group of handsome young men pictured above is none other than the cream of the campus. As will be noticed, each of them bears upon his coat the insignia of the Sigs. Of course not all of them wear buttons—the chapter owns only a gross—so it was necessary to hand out blue and gold ribbons to about half of the men they had fooled.

The building in back of the pledges is the proposed new chapter house. It does not really exist, as yet, but the clever Chis faked in the architect's drawing of the mansion. Prints of this picture were sent to every high school in the state in order to induce potential pledges to keep always in mind their fate. Incidentally, the pictures will be a great help to Brother Gid the next time he goes out on a rushing tour over the state.

The above photograph of the Phi Delta Arms, hotel de luxe, was taken by our house photographer during our spring rushing season. You will note the sign above the steps leading to the terrace below—oh, yes, we were awarded a handsome prize for our artistic decorations.

The two fellows on the left of the sign are Brothers Ilman and Dahlberg (Oss). They are matching pennies to determine which shall wear their only clean shirt—they are such droll boys, you know. Curley Welton is the dark Roman god leaning against the tree on the left—no, not that one—the other one. You were looking at our statue of Stark, set up in the middle of our Babylonian fountain, because he needs cooling off.

The young fellow just walking out of the back door of our new $50,000 hotel is Brother Carney. He is taking the short cut to the Sigma Chi house.

The trees in rear of the mansion are not magnolia trees.

Midge Griffith may be seen on the front porch practicing some new steps for the girls' dancing class. Brother Fritz is his partner. It is rumored that they will join Pantages this summer—Brother Fritz in a black-face song and dance act, assisted by Brother Griffith, who will carry the suit cases (but not the money).

The house cook—that handsome lady with the pail over her arm—may be seen slinking over to the Blue Parrot to borrow some spuds.

Estelle Roberts and Jack Baggs are riding double on the house pony. The polo stables and grounds can be seen with the nude eye standing on the right of the picture.

The gleeful boy who is climbing the large tree in the foreground, is our own Captain Astell.

The Alpha Chi's boarding house is large and roomy, and the girls have such good times! Every night there is a fiddle-de-winks tournament in the cellar, and an intellectual bull-session on the third floor. Twice a week Helen Kennedy lectures on etiquette in the clothes closet under the cellar stairs. Sometimes one of the pledges is sent up to see Helen about the advisability of doing a little work around the house, but in the main, the girls live together in peace and harmony.

In this picture, the girls may be seen disporting themselves in all the exuberance of youth. Nine of the girls are playing anti-i-over with the ball that Martha Dunlap swiped from the Phi Delt's, while some of the others are interpreting a few Greek dances on the extensive, close clipped lawn. It will be noticed that they pick their way through the litter of cigarette-butts on either side of the front steps with true Grecian grace.

"The Delta Gammas intend to build a house! Oh, girls! Honest! The alums have decided to advance enough money to dig half the cellar, and we are to furnish the rest! Isn't that perfectly splendid! Just think—a honest-to-gosh chapter house with two baths, and clothes closets enough to let all the girls hang up their extra dress!"

The above conversation, heard by one of our keen-eared scouts, led to an investigation and to the subsequent finding of the architect's drawing reproduced above. As will be observed, the new mansion is to be of the simple Gothic-Roman type, and in order to avoid confusion with the Western Montana Bank and the Smend-Simons building, the Greek letters of Delta Gamma are to be displayed prominently on the front and sides of the edifice. It is rumored that the letters are to be treated with radio-lite substance, so that sisters returning from downtown orgies may find their own house, no matter how dark the night, or how bumpy the payments.

The Romeo and Juliet balcony on the front of the building was added to the plans after Beulah Gagnon had threatened to hold out on the idea. Beulah insisted that she needed a place from which she could broadcast the news that Woody and she had definitely split up, and the sisters, sympathizing with her plea that no man could put a newspaper ahead of his duty to his true love, took up a collection and had the balcony added to the plans.

The Sentinel

Oh, yes, us Kappa's manage to collect a cup or two in Varsity Vodyl—whenever the Delta Gamma's or the Alpha Phi's put on worse acts than ours. This picture, later published in the rotogravure section of the New York Times, is a scene from our latest success, "Two Hundred Legs Under the Sea". Sister Fleming—the girl on the extreme right—was queen of the sea blimps in the act. You will notice that she is wearing the new, scarlet, Jantzen bathing-suit, and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company cap, presented to her by the Interchurch council.

Sister Marie Neely—fifth from right—represented Captain Kidd in the Dance of the Pirates Bobb. Don't you think her swagger boots and the black pirate-pants perfectly stunning? Sister Vivian is standing right in front of her. They're a beautiful pair of girls—no other sorority on the campus can boast of as many.

Betsy Sutherland, the short girl in the center of the group, later received an offer from Florenz Ziegfeld to do her famous dance of the single veil in the One o'Clock Follies. Poor dear, she had to refuse because of her tender heartedness. She hated to deprive

The Sentinel

Gilda Gray of her job, and really you know, Gilda needs it badly. Betsy's so tender and thoughtful!

Mary Elizabeth Sedman, standing just behind Betsy, is wearing the latest in chiffon bathing frocks. Through the awkward blunder of a stage-hand, a quart of water was accidentally spilled over her costume, shrinking it about her figure so tightly, that three shoe-horns and a bootjack were needed to remove it.

Professor Bishop, of the Bishop School of Dancing, blundered into the scene attempting to collect his fee for coaching—mathematics—but with true Kappa diplomacy, we posed him at the left of the picture with his hand outstretched to the chapter treasurer.

Mr Denton of Phi Sigma Kappa is famous throughout the northwest as the greatest aggregation of bum musicians ever gathered together for the purpose of making the warm Montana nights hideous with agonizing sounds.

This picture, taken while the brothers were erroneously working on the theory that practice makes perfect—the Sigma Nus maintain that the Phi Sigs will never become even mediocre—shows the entire personnel of the chapter industriously working with instruments borrowed from the Grizzly band. (Atkinson was unaware of this.) The hazy effect in the picture was caused by the blue notes blown by Brother Kelly, who solos on the bass sax.

It will be observed that Brother Warden is in charge of the big drum. Bob was at one time a corporal in the Salvation Army, where he learned to sing hymns and shake the tambourine. The chapter declined to allow him to use this latter instrument, because it would have been too reminiscent of side shows and other vulgar entertainments—"Quo Vadis," for instance.

Brother Sweet gained his great lung power by playing the piccolo, and was forced to become fast on his feet in order to get away from the hordes of unappreciative listeners, who would rather sleep at night.

This is the house that the Alpha Phi's have paid for but do not own. Being ardent socialists, the girls believe that wealth is the root of all evil, and so, they pay rent year after year, instead of attempting to buy a house.

This picture, taken at midnight by our staff photographer, caught some of the girls unawares, so to speak. It will be observed that they go in for the black, chiffon kind. Four of the sisters may be seen through the windows of the garret, surreptiously returning the clothes they have borrowed from other sisters. The ensemble suit that Marcia Patterson has in her hand, belongs to Helen Buckingham, who the picture reveals as sleeping with her mouth open.

The girl seated on the floor beside that pile of old shoes is Mary Spense. It will be observed that her nose is shiny and that the floor is wet. Poor dear, she weeps because Paul Curtiss had taken only two hours to say goodnight, instead of his usual two hours and thirty three minutes. Men are such brutes!

The persons who are still enjoying the night air on the front porch are none other than Julia Ziebarth and Mark Good. The girl peeping around the corner, is Martha Reichle, who is trying to get into the house without being discovered. The girl just behind her is Edna Vickers. The bundle under Edna's arm is a seventeen-pound veal roast, which she and Martha have just stolen from the Sig Ep house. Martha is carrying the jar of jam that they removed from the pantry of the A.D.A. house.

The girl who is standing in the window of the second story, is Alva Larson. Alva is very much unaware, only it will be noticed that she affects the pale-purple variety. She likes to be distinctive, and besides, it's easy to locate her pale-purple ones, since all the other girls wear black.
